THE CIRCUS RIDER TO HIS HORSE.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY MONROE H. ROSENFELD.

TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE FRANK PASTOR.

'Good-by, old fellow! When I think that you and I must part,
There's just a little tender feeling here about my heart!
For you have been my trusty friend, companion tried and true.
It's parting with a brother, seems to me, to part with you.

"Full twenty years, in many lands, the ring has been our home,
Our praise, the plaudits that have rung beneath yon canvas dome;
But age, that comes to man and beast, has dimmed your eyes of fire,
And limbs, that once were lightning fleet, at last begin to tire.

"Old fellow, if a horse could speak, I know what you would say:
'The lights are up, the ring is waiting. Hark! the trumpets play!
Tonight we'll set the people wild and startle all the town!
I hear the cracking of the whip, the laughter of the clown!'

"Alas! those feeble knees of yours would make a sorry show,
And, though your speed has won applause, they'd laugh at you, I know;
Ah! 'tis the fate, I fear me still, of man as well as beast—
For age, a famine of regard, for youth, a glorious feast!

"Farewell. Your heart will ne'er leap up to see the lights again,
Old comrade mine, so tried and true, in sunshine and in rain!
A cosy stall, the best of care—may these still be your lot—
How many of us human kind are helpless and forgot?

"In dreams—if horses ever dream—you'll live in triumphs past,
And this is all that I can do while memory doth last;
But nevermore can I forget my comrade and my friend,
Till Life's last tent is folded and its last grand tour shall end!"

PAUL GAULOT'S LIFE AND DEATH.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY VINCENT S. COOKE.

There is an ancient Portugese tradition that the eldest son of a family of seven sons always meets death in the same manner as his father, and that should he come to his end by any other means the legitimacy of his birth may be questioned.

Old timers in the circus business may recollect a lion tamer who came to this country in 185–, and who returned to his home in Madrid the year following, to meet a tragic death there while (it was so said) attempting to subdue a refractory elephant. He was known to the few people with whom he came in contact in America as Pedro Gallows, or Gallus, but his real name was Paul Gaulot. He was the eldest of a family of seven boys, as was his father and grandfather before him. Strangely enough, each of these had come to death in precisely the same way, and the good people of Oporto, in which city the family had lived for generations, were not at all surprised that the preposterous old legend had received such a verification.

Paul Gaulot's life and death were remarkable in more senses than one. It is possible that there are one or two men now in the profession who know the skeleton of the strange story, but are not conversant with the startling details that transform it from an ordinary string of odd and thrilling incidents into a genuine romance in real life.

Gaulot is thus described by one of his former acquaintances: A man below the medium height, rather inclined to be stoop shouldered; of great muscular development, and with a chest as round as a barrel; a beautifully shaped head covered with black curly hair, and a pair of eyes as black as sloes, with an indescribable fire in their depths, which only became visible when the man's emotions were played upon—then those eyes would blaze like living coals.

It was from several hundred letters and some sadly mutilated manuscript, that I have, after considerable labor and with the exercise of an extraordinary amount of patience, gathered the material, which, when properly arranged, reveals a rather remarkable character, or, more properly, an interesting study, for the metaphysician. Gaulot might be compared to a powerful magnet, and every woman who saw him to a bit of steel. He possessed the most extraordinary fascination for the opposite sex. Rich and haughty dames were drawn to him as surely as were the most romantic of hero worshipping maidens. Ladies in the autumn of life became just as delightfully flustered when in his presence as did the buds of humanity bursting into womanhood. He seemed to attract just not only the frivolous and the day dreamers but the strong minded and the masculine woman, for in his long and enthusiastic train of admirers he numbered at least two of the most pronounced and rabid advocates of the civil and political rights of woman that could be imagined.

It would be the merest affectation to say that Gaulot did not know that he was endowed with this power. The scores, aye, the hundreds of letters he received from women in all stations of life, must have convinced him, if nothing else did Nevertheless, one would almost think that he was not aware of it, for he was as utterly indifferent to womankind in general, as he was to the growling and snarling of his lions and tigers, when he was outside the cage. "It was the same way with my father and my grandfather," he used to say, "and neither of them paid any attention to it until they were forty years of age. Then they married and reared large families. I suppose I shall follow their example, although now, at the age of thirty, I am inclined to doubt it."

In a picturesque inland village in old England there lived in the year 184– a plump and pretty maiden named Elizabeth Gedden. Her father was the village boniface—a man of parts, and generally regarded as an oracle on all matters relating to the welfare of the shire, the United Kingdon and the world at large. His only daughter was easily the belle of the village, or of all of the west of England for that matter. Her form was like that of Hebe herself. Her face was as sweet and soulful as the face of the Madonna, and she possessed a rare mental and physical health not often combined with such grace of person. The yokels roundabout worshipped the very ground she walked upon, and even from far off London there trooped not only the addle pated nabobs but the real gentlemanly gentlemen to see this voluptuous study in flesh and blood. Elizabeth treated them all alike. She was too young, she said—albeit she had turned twenty—to consider marriage, or even courtship, and she told her father that it pleased her much better to feed her chickens than to be bothered listening to "fine speeches from fine gentlemen who had nothing else to do but ride across country and make love."

One day there came to a nearby town a traveling show. It contained half a dozen piebald horses, a clown, three lady riders and a den of wild animals, into which, as the handbills announced, "M. Gaulot of the Royal Circus of Madrid would enter, and instantly subdue the savage denizens of jungle and forest with the power of his eye."

Such an event was enough to set the village by the ears. Such an aggregation of attractions under one canvas had not visited that part of the country for years, and for the first time in its history the famous old tavern of John Gedden's was closed, so that the entire family, including the stable boy, might see the wonderful and extraordinary spectacle of real living lions and tigers, to say nothing of ladies in ganze skirts jumping through wooden hoops from the backs of moving horses.

Of course, Elizabeth Gedden had the seat of honor in the family chaise, and half a dozen of her rural lovers galloped at the side and in the front of the carriage, only hoping that a dozen highwaymen would come clattering along so that they could display their devotion. There was a great crowd to meet John Gedden's chaise as it came swinging down the road, and even the extraordinary attraction of a genuine out and out circus was not sufficient to overcome the desire of all the young men in the town to get a glimpse of the beautiful Elizabeth as she alighted, and held court for a few moments before entering the tent.

The blare of a horn announced the beginning of the entertainment, and then, as a strong lunged band began to play, the horses pranced into the ring, and the ladies in gauze skirts jumped gracefully through the papered covered hoops. Circuses in those days were pretty much the same as they are now—not as extensive, perhaps, nor as elaborate, but the principal on which they were based was the same.

The blood curdling performance of M. Gaulot was the piece de resistance. Clad in gorgeously spangled tights the Portugese leaped into the cage from the rear, and after a brief exhibition of his control over the animals, made his bow and retired.

Elizabeth had watched the earlier part of the performance with eager interest, and when the lion tamer made his appearance she drew closer to her father and breathed a prayer to herself that the poor fellow might not be torn to pieces. No sooner had the man made his appearance, however, than the girl lost sight of the wild beasts altogether. Her eyes were fixed on the man only. She saw nothing else. A strange feeling came over her. It was not of fear nor of apprehension. It was a sensation so new, so inexplicable, that Elizabeth Gedden's heart began to throb and her brain to reel. She begged her father to take her home, and the good man, believing that his child had been frightened by the ferocious growls of the animals, removed her and drove rapidly back to the old village inn.

Elizabeth slept not a wink that night. Before daylight she had dressed herself, and with twenty sovereigns in her pocket, taken from her own private store, she called up a lad from her father's stable and bade him drive post haste to the town where the circus had been exhibiting the day before. When the carriage arrived the show had moved farther on. It was followed, and when reached the astonished stable boy was dismissed and sent home, with a sovereign in his pocket as a gag for his mouth. The young woman entered the tent and impatiently watched the ring performance. When the den of wild beasts was wheeled in and the attention of the spectators was closely fixed on that performance, she slipped over to the small tent from which she had seen Gaulot emerge, and entered.

The lion tamer made his bow, and leaping from the cage ran quickly back to his dressing tent. To his intense astonishment he found there this unbidden visitor. She was in tears, and her bosom was heaving with emotion. Gaulot, who appeared to possess little or no sentimentality, bluntly asked Elizabeth what she wanted.

"I wish to know," said the girl, checking her sobs for an instant, "whither you go after leaving here?"

"To Dover, and thence to Calais," replied Gaulot, observing for the first time the remarkable beauty of the speaker; "and if you will pardon me, Miss, I must request that you leave this tent at once. It is against the rules."

The girl arose and without another word withdrew. Gaulot wanted to question her, but her obedience to his bequest was so sudden that before he had time to speak she had gone.

That same night Elizabeth Gedden started for Dover, and under an assumed name put up at a modest inn, anouncing that she would await there for a week to keep an appointment with her mother. The circus arrived in Dover four days later, and on the day following set sail for Calais.

From this point, until the lapse of a year and some days, the information gleamed from the manuscript and the letters is slightly obscure, but thereafter it is as clear as the noonday sun.

Elizabeth followed the lion tamer to Calais, thence to Madrid, back to London, and early in the fifties set sail for America. All this time it had been her habit to attend the performances and await the appearance of Gaulot. Immediately after his retirement she would leave the tent, and when he had donned his street dress she would be waiting to accost him with the same inquiry, day after day:

"Sir, whither do you go after leaving here?"

From one country to another, in storm and in sunshine, Elizabeth Gedden followed this man, whose strange eyes had burned their way into her heart. She never changed her inquiry, nor did she make one step more of an advance. Gaulot, while admiring her beauty, looked upon her with indifference. He was constantly in receipt of the tenderest billet doux wherever he went, and, while yet a young man, had reached that blase period, when he ceased to be surprised at anything.

One day, however, there came a sudden change. Gaulot had come to look upon Elizabeth Gedden as a woman slightly demented. Surely, he argued, only an unbalanced mind could be the basis for such extraordinary behavior. In the three years that this most remarkable action had been going on, the lion tamer had not seen Elizabeth for more than a minute each day. She waited only to ask the invariable question and then quickly disappeared, and was not seen again until the day following.

The beginning of the end came in the upper part of New York State. Gaulot had abandoned the English show for an American organization which was larger and better and paid higher salaries. Elizabeth Gedden continued to be his daily double as before. He got to expecting to see her as regularly as he did see his meals. A part of the performance in the new circus was the tub rolling act by three elephants. One of them, a tuskless, vicious little runt, required constant watching and goading to keep him from doing serious mischief.

Gaulot had then given up the lion taming act and devoted his entire attention to the elephants.

It was a beautiful afternoon in June. The tent was filled with an audience from the country roundabout. The grand entree, the bareback and pad riders, the lady riders, had been loudly applauded, and then Gaulot entered with his elephants. The cumbrous beasts were put through their performance, and were about to be returned to their quarters, when one of them, with a wild trumpet of rage, ambled over the ring side. The people began to scream and climb up over the seats. A child missed its footing and fell. A young woman near by tried to clutch the child's dress. She, too, lost her balance and rolled down the seats directly in front of the infuriated pachyderm. In an instant the great beast had struck her with his trunk. She threw up her hands and fell prone on her face. Then the elephant knelt on her prostrate form with one bended knee and crushed out her life.

Gaulot had leaped after the elephant, but not in time to save the woman's life. Her quivering body was carried into a dressing tent.

"What a beautiful face!" remarked a bystander. "I wonder who she is?"

Gaulot turned his face and looked, and he saw the face of Elizabeth Gedden.

A strange feeling swept over the man's soul—a revulsion, a reaction. He was no longer blase. He felt a desire to kiss the dead woman back to life. He shrieked aloud, and they had to get strong men to hold him. It was a week before he was able to take his old place, and then to his dismay he found that his courage was utterly gone. He was afraid even of a dog. With the departure of his courage went the fire in his eyes. Women no longer noticed him. He was Gaulot in name only.

Broken hearted the man returned to Spain. He told no one of the strange affliction that had overtaken him. On going to Madrid he went at once to the Royal Circus, and his old companions gave him a royal welcome. Two new elephants had been received that day, and the managers were glad because Gaulot was there. He had such a wonderful control, they said, over the beasts of the field.

Trembling like an aspen leaf, the Portugese entered the ring with the elephants for a rehearsal.

One of them, a large, bright eyed animal, strode forward, and before the horrified attendants knew what had happened Gaulot was lying senseless, with an elephant kneeling on his body, cracking his bones. When they picked him up he was dead. A piece of paper was sticking out of one of his pockets. Somebody took it out and read these words:

"Sir, when you leave here, whither do you go?"

WE ARE hearing a good deal lately about the Widow Maginnis' pig. We suppose that the saying, "Let bygones be bygones," mercifully covers all queer transactions prior to March 4, 1885; so we may never hope to know whether there were any "chicken raffles" during the Age of Hayes, the Poulterer.

AMONG THE WHITE TENTS.

PAWNEE BILL'S WILD WEST at Gloucester Beach, draws large and enthusiastic audiences. The capacity of the grounds was tested Aug. 2, on the occasion of the marriage of Capt. Stubbs (Wa-Kau-Kah), chief of the Kaws, to Annie Harris of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by a Justice of the Peace, and then by Pawnee Bill, white chief of the Pawnees, according to the rites of that nation. The bride and groom were the recipients of many handsome presents, among them being a full grown burro. Kansas City Lillie, the youngest cowboy in the company, was presented with a $12 hat Aug. 6, by the other cowboys.

NOTES from Healy & Bigelow's Indian Medicine Co., No. 15.—The company includes: Dr. A. A. Waite, manager; Frank Adams, stage manager; Waite Family, Adams and Osborne, Dave Jackson, Prof. Grothe, Stone Bros., Martin and Gifford, Mme. Baker, a band and orchestra of ten pieces, Prof. Morris, leader; ten Sioux Indians. They are now located at Kansas City, Mo. for the season, and report big business. G. A. Osborne, the Dutch comedian, was presented with a fine nine pound boy by his wife Sadie Aug. 5. Frank Adams, late of Adams and Weston, has doubled up with G. A. Osborne, and the team hereafter will be known as Adams and Osborne.

PROF. W. W. MCEWEN (otherwise Prof. Hogan), the aeronaut, had two narrow escapes from death Aug. 10 at Rockaway Beach. At half-past five o'clock the professor ascended with his balloon from the front of Brosnan's Seaside House. When he reached the height of 150ft. the balloon careened and tossed him in such a way that his life was dispaired of. This was caused by the failure of the men in charge to cut the guide ropes, and the huge balloon was instantly checked in its upward flight. The ropes run from its top to a thirty foot pole in front of the Seaside House, and to the roof of the hotel itself. The wind was blowing pretty strongly at the time, and the top was soon torn away, with every prospect of the airship being completely wrecked. Seeing the danger of the aeronaut, a man named Tracy, who was on the roof of the hotel, cut the rope there. The balloon was carried toward the house, the professor dangling from the bar of the trapeze. He narrowly escaped dashing his brains out against the cornice of the hotel. The balloon took a southwesterly course, and after carrying the professor about 400ft. in the direction of the big hotel it remained stationary and appeared as if about to collapse. The aeronaut shouted to the man below him to cut the rope, but his voice could not be distinctly heard. Perceiving this he swung himself from the bar to the remaining guide rope and commenced to descend hand over hand until within a few feet of the ground, when he let go. He was caught in the arms of Prop. Thomass.

ROBERT WHITTAKER, the rider, is at his home in Plainfield, N. J. He has been ill since his accident last Fall, while with the Sells Bros.' Show. He expects to be around next month, and will go to Columbus, O., to break in one of his horses.

ROBT. F. CLEMENTS' Circus was equipped with an entire new dress in the shape of a 100ft. round top canvas, with a 50ft. middle piece, at Martinsburg, W. Va., on Aug. 7, but its stay was very short. On the afternoon of 8, at the close of the performance, the tent was struck by a violent cyclone, leaving everything in a very deplorable condition. After tearing the canvas into threads it tore it from its stakes, and, after slashing and whirling it from one end of the lot to the other, landed it in a lumber yard 500 yards distant. Fortunately no one was injured. Mr. Clements, being a thorough business man is always prepared for catastrophies of this nature, and had his old canvas on hand, which was put up in time for the night show. Mr. Clements has ordered another canvas, and everything will be brand new again in the course of a week. Edwin Leopold, who has the privileges with the show, feels elated over the good business he is doing. It is his first venture in this line.

THE BARRETTA BROS. and Blair Stone have left Ferguson's New Feature Show on account of unpaid salaries, as a letter signed by Blair Stone informs us. The performers put an attachment on the show.

GEORGE W. ORRIN is enjoying himself in Mexico, far away from our sticky heat. He writes us that heavy clothing is in order there, and that a light overcoat does not come amiss in the evening air. He expects to be in New York early in September, to arrange for the coming season's campaign, which will open in November. Edward Orrin, who has been in the "States" during the Summer, purchasing cattle, is back again in his Mexican home. This enterprising firm will run the National Theatre in the City of Mexico during September. The Salvini Dog, Monkey, Goat and Pony Parlor Circus is still under their management, and is now touring the interior districts of Mexico.

OUR Keokuk, Ia., letter gives an account of Prof. Baldwin's narrow escape from drowning.

Robb will be treasurer and David Nelson doorkeeper.....The Standard will not open till Sept. 8. In the meantime the house will be painted and decorated, under the superintendence of Manager W. H. Smith, who has just returned from a seven weeks' vacation. "Little Nugget" is announced for the opening.....Chas. Reese and Ada Clifton have proved very popular at the Palace Theatre, but will leave Aug. 31 to join the "Night Owls" Co.....Howe's Circus will open here next week.....Harry Pepper had a rousing benefit at Schnaider's Garden 10.....Maj. J. A. McGuire and Thos. E. Garrick had a mounted sword contest at Schnaider's Garden 11. Maj. McGuire was billed as "champion of the world," and Mr. Garrick was Frederick Warde's leading man last season.

WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee.—The season of grand opera at Schlitz Park came to a close Aug. 12, much to the regret of the music loving people of Milwaukee. It was both an artistic and financial success, which has prompted the management to map out plans for performances on a grander scale next season. The performers will make their farewell appearance at the benefit of C. D. Hess 13. The bill is a monster one, and comprises acts and scenes from every opera presented during the Summer. The performance will last five hours, and will commence at 2 P. M., an intermission being given from 5.30 to 8 o'clock. From indications Manager Hess will realize handsomely thereby. The light opera season is probably off. The down town theatres are getting ready for their Fall openings, and two weeks hence will find the season fairly opened. Some of the houses have made many improvements, notably the Grand. Dockstader's Minstrels give two performances at this house 12. Fowler & Warmington's "Skipped" are due 26. The regular season does not open until Sept. 3 with "The Twelve Temptations." Robson and Crane had this date, but changed to October.

NEW ACADEMY.—Rice's "Corsair" opens the season Aug. 19.

NOTES.—The People's and Grand Avenue Theatre open the season Aug. 25.....The principals of the Hess Opera Co. will be distributed thus during the Winter: Helene Bertram with Conried & Hermann, Louise Meisslinger in Leipzig, Ger., Sophia Traubmann in Paris, Wm. Pruette, Sig. Michelena, Sig. Montegriffo, Wm. Broderick and probably A. Tomasi with Emma Abbott. Miss Guthrie has not yet closed. Camille Mauri retired some time ago. Mr. Mertens, Mr. Torpi and other German members of the company go to the Metropolitan Opera Co. The chorus to Emma Abbott and New York companies. One sad event, though, mars an otherwise happy ending. It is the signs of insanity manifested by Katharine McNeill. She had spent a great deal of time and money to prepare herself for parts which the management, however, did not believe her capable of filling. The disappointment, it is believed, has affected her mind. She will remain here for the present in the care of her mother, who has been sent for. Clare G. Hess has accepted the position of business manager of the Grand under Herman Nunnemacher. C. D. Hess has closed with Col. W. E. Sinn's attractions, and will divide his time probably between "Alone in London" and "Fascination.".....The Eidorado has closed, as has Koch's Pavilion. The first on account of the law, the latter for want of patronage.....Oliver J. Stanton and Val Boschelle have closed with Jacob Litt for next season.....Wm. Broderick leaves for Atlantic City 15.....M. W. Tobin was here, ahead of Dockstader's Minstrels.

Eau Claire.—At the Grand Opera House, Sol Smith Russell in "Bewitched" played to a packed house Aug. 6. Newton Beers' "Lost in London" comes 11.....Both Barnum's Circus and Cleveland's Haverly Minstrels have changed their dates since my last letter. The former comes 27 and the latter 31.....Sam Josephs, general agent for John Robinson, was in town for a day looking over the Robinson-Elliott Show, with a view to purchasing an interest.....Frank Hurst and Pete Conklin Jr. made me a pleasant call. They are representing the Robinson-Elliott Show.....One of Hamlin's Wizard Oil Concert Companies opened 8 for a two weeks' siege.....Robinson's Circus did a good business 8, 9.

La Crosse.—Theatrical business has been quiet the past week. Barnum's second advertising car was here Aug. 10.....Leop. Bruck, late pianist of Nellie Walters' Comedy Co., was in the city 7, and departed for Chicago 8.....E. G. Rodolf went to Chicago on business 7.....The work on our new Opera House is moving along very fast .....Cleveland's Haverly Minstrels will play here 16 and Gus Williams 17.

Appleton.—Sisson & Brady's "Little Nugget" Co. will be here Aug. 18.....Barnum's Circus, 7, had large audiences, and gave an excellent performance. All the members of the show are well and happy.....Fred Beane will join the Choate Dramatic Co. 15, at Chicago.

Oshkosh.—At the Grand, Haverly's Minstrels appear Aug. 13. Sol Smith Russell played to a large audience 9.....At North Side Turner, Hensler's American Cadet Band appeared 3, but, owing to a small audience, they refunded the money and canceled the engagement.....Stetson's "U. T. C.," under canvas, did good business.

LOUISIANA.

New Orleans.—At a meeting of the directors of the People's Theatre Co., Aug. 10, the plans for their theatre were examined and adopted. The site of the playhouse will be located on Magazine Street, between Washington Avenue and Sixth Street, about two miles from the old Exposition ground. It will consist of one story and a Mansard roof, 90ft. front by 150ft. deep, and will have a seating capacity of 2,500. The building will be of wood, its sides covered with corrugated iron, and the front having a terra cotta finish, above which will run a handsome balcony, to be used for open air concerts. On the upper floor, one side of the front will be used as a club room. This room will be about 32ft. by 20ft. The Magazine Street front will be occupied by the main entrance, with a barroom on one side and a store on the other. The former will be run by the company, the latter to be rented. The interior will be finished in such a way as to embody nearly all the recent discoveries in the art of making the interior of a theatre cheerful, pretty and comfortable. The dome of the auditorium will rise to the roof. There will be a parquet, dress circle and gallery, in addition to two handsome boxes of modern design on each side of the stage. It is the intention of the company to have a movable floor, which they can place in the parquet when it is desired to connect the auditorium and stage into a ballroom. The plan of the company is to open their house by Dec. 1.....Attorney General Walter H. Rogers of Louisiana obtained an injunction in the Civil Dist. Court 11, prohibiting the concert saloons from being kept open between the hours of 12 P. M. Saturday nights to 6 P. M. Monday. The injunction fell on the concert saloon managers like a bomb. They each expected to be carried before the criminal court, to be tried for violating the law, and by a jury, but the Attorney General decided to test the constitutionality of the act. The suit promises to be a lively one. Both sides have eminent attorneys to plead their cause. The general feeling of the bar is, tha the State will come out victorious.

Keokuk.—Sam Baldwin, the Quincy aeronaut and parachute jumper, was the potent attraction for the opening day of the August races at the Fair Grounds here 7. Nothwithstanding the threatening clouds overhead, which promised every few minutes a downpour of rain, a large crowd was in attendance to witness the ascent and jump. It looked rather bad at 4.50 P. M., when Baldwin gave the word and the immense bag of gas rose rapidly, amid the cheers of the crowd below. Three minntes later, at a height estimated at from 5,000 to 6,000 feet, he grasped the ring of his parachute and dropped into space. In five minutes from the time he had left the balloon he had passed over the city and reached a point about the middle of the Mississippi River. He let go the parachute some thirty feet from its surface and disappeared. When he came up again he made an effort to swim, but the attempt was quite fruitless, as the water had almost strangled him when he dropped. Luckily, however, some fishermen in a boat had heard his warning shouts as he passed, and came to his assistance, and just in time, for the aeronaut was well nigh gone. They pulled for the wharf which was reached shortly after, and there a conveyance which was in waiting carried him to the Fair Grounds again, where the assembled crowd fairly went wild over the intrepid aeronaut. In conversation with your correspondent Mr. Baldwin said this was his second jump, the first having been made at Quincy a short time ago. WESTMINSTER MUSEE.—The improvements at this place have reached such a state of completion that your correspondent can give an intelligent idea concerning the appearance of this popular place of amusement on its opening, Aug. 27. The most noticable feature is the decoration of the halls. The main curio hall is decorated in Grecian style, and ornamented by a row of elaborate pillars through the centre, which also serve as a support for the lecture hall above. This lecture hall which is reached by a new and ample stairway, is lighted by windows of cathedral glass in bright colors and of exquisite design. Here the decorations are of the most unique character, the entire hall being made to represent a ruined Egyptian temple. Huge pillars appear around the apartment, through which can be had glimpses of Egyptian scenery painted after the style of a cyclorama. The effect is most realistic and pleasing to the eye, and reflects great credit on the artist. The entrance from the main hall to the annex, which has always been a bare and unsightly spot, has been transformed into a beautiful grotto, the spectacular effect of which is gorgeous. Huge stalactites, glittering with gold, hang from the vaulted roof, while streams of water flow from the rocky caverns on the sides. This spot will undoubtedly prove a source of delight to the little ones. The annex, which is to be hereafter designated as "The Home of the Mammoths," is tastefully decorated with flowers, vines and branches, and is fitted with every appliance for the safety and convenience of the animals to be exhibited here. The narrow stairways formerly leading from the main hall to the Opera House, have been replaced by a grand stairway forty feet wide, which is of easy ascent and decorated with ornamental posts, elaborately carved and surmounted by lanterns of vari-colored glass. The most important improvement in the Opera House is the alteration to the proscenium arch, which was formerly almost a complete circle and necessarily made the stage opening small. By cutting away that portion of the arch which rested upon the stage fully six feet more of an opening is gained, and the general appearance of the stage much enhanced. Two new boxes, built after Moorish designs, with entrances from the balcony; an entire new set of scenery, with attendant draperies, from the brush of A. B. Phillips of Boston, are among other noticeable improvements. A radical change has been made in the front entrance. The ticket offices have been removed to the extreme end of the lobby, on a line with the main hall. The lobby is now sixty feet in length, finished in Lincrusta Walton, lighted by three crystal chandeliers, and is entered through arches of elaborately carved wood in Moorish designs. The entire house is lighted by electricity, hundreds of incandescent lights being arranged in the most fanciful forms.

During George L. Fox's management J. J. McCloskey was a useful member of the company, and played in all the pantomimes, the heavy villains, the principal singing roles, such as Hecate, Rock-aida, etc., as well as pantomime characters. The amount of work done in those days was amazing. For instance he would play the heavy villain in the opening drama, eccentric comedy in the farce, Mohammed the Arab, fight a long combat and close with the pantomime, "Mother Goose." This was his nightly work for years. When W. B. Freligh became manager J. J. McCloskey was engaged and at his suggestion tried his hand at authorship, writing "Across the Continent," which was a great success. His next play was "Pomp," which was followed by "On Hand," "Through By Daylight" and many others.

The matinee performance for the benefit of the family of Dan Bryant, took place April 29, 1875. The programme was the following:

"THE SNOW BIRD."

Ben, a sailor	W. J. Fleming
Sternhold	Neil Gray
Sloppy Sam	E. W. Marston
Grubbleton	John Walsh
Jack Raddipole	W. Murray
Clincher	Chas. Stokes
Sharpeye	A. Percy
Mrs. Foster	Mrs. Barry
Jenny Foster	Mrs. W. G. Jones

Followed by a scene from

"THE WIFE, OR A TALE OF MANTUA."

Julian St. Pierre	F. Beatty
Ferrado	J. B. Browne

After which, the pantomime of

"ROBERT MACAIRE."

Jacques Strop	W. Allen
Robert Macaire	C. Manly
Germuel	C. Stokes
Dumont	W. Burton
Charles	W. Murray
Pierre	S. Halpin
Sergeant Loupy	W. Lansing
Marie	Annie Conroy
Clementine	Nelly Norry

The audience was small, owing to strong attractions elsewhere, and because the highest price of admission was less than $1, the sum charged for the general admission ticket.

The next manager was W. A. Robbins, a furniture dealer, who gave the house a complete overhauling and put it in better condition than it had been for years. The entire front was painted white, the ceiling of the vestibule being neatly frescoed. The old benches in the parquet were replaced by neat folding chairs, and the circle was entirely reconstructed, the old seats having been removed to the tier above, and the partitions which formerly divided the boxes, taken down. Comfortable benches, and in front one row of folding chairs, filled their place. These changes gave the theatre a larger as well as a lighter and cheery appearance.

The opening was Aug. 28, 1875, with Jas. W. Meath as business manager and Milnes Levick stage manager. After the overture, the entire company, grouped upon the stage, sang "The Star Spangled Banner." This was followed by "The Lady of Lyons," with the following cast: Claude Melnotte, Milnes Levick; Beauseant, F. A. Tannehill; Col. Damas, W. H. Partello; Glavis, Louis Meredith; Deschappelles, Charles Manly; Gaspard, J. B. Browne; Landlord, W. A. Rouse; Pauline, Laura Linden; Mme. Deschappelles, Fanny Denham Rouse, and Widow Melnotte, Mary Hill. "The Rough Diamond," which closed the performances, introduced E. W. Marston as Cousin Joe, W. H. Partello as Lord Plato, J. B. Browne as Sir William Evergreen, Louis Meredith as Capt. Blenheim, Nellie Young as Margery, and Ida Raymond as Lady Plato.

The season closed July 15, 1876. Mr. Robbins retained possession until May, 1878, when he retired. Fred Hofele was the next manager. He commenced June 29, 1878, with the following company: H. W. Mitchell, F. M. Welles, Frank E. Jamison, Edward Brown, G. P. James, Zoe Gaynor, Nellie Wright, Ada Foster, Chas. Foster, M. B. Pike, Joseph P. Winter, J. B. Brown, G. W. Harrison, Mrs. W. G. Jones, Millie Sackett, Tillie Malvern, Nell Grey, E. Brown, W. B. Murray, Jos. Warner, W. H. Sweeney, J. Henry, N. W. Stall, Louise Fox, Marian Oswold, Naomi Lester, Marie Moulton and Ellen Wade. Mr. Hofele did not continue long in the management.

Benjamin J. Deane, the leader for this theatre a long time, died in this city April 3, 1879. He was one of the oldest orchestra leaders of this city. He was a sufferer from dropsy. His body and lower limbs were much swollen, but his arms, hands and face became greatly emaciated. He came to this country in 1850, and was engaged at this theatre as second leader under W. T. Peterschen, father of F. W. Peterschen. In 1860 he became the leader. He was also leader at the Chatham, Comique (under James Lingard) and the New Bowery. When Jullien gave concerts at Castle Garden he was in the orchestra. John P. Cooke was an excellent leader in old times. Burton imported him from Europe, and from Burton he went to the old Broadway Theatre. He was afterwards at Niblo's, under Mr. Wheatley's management. A more genial and witty man than Cooke I have seldom met. Richard Riepel was another old time leader of deserved eminence, and a well educated musician. He subsequently married Matilda Heron, and died in this city Oct 1, 1887. Bijou Heron (Mrs. Henry Miller) is his daughter.

After Thomas Baker left Jullien's orchestra he led English opera at Niblo's, and was for years at Wallack's Theatre. Baker was succeeded at Niblo's by Harvey B. Dodworth. George Loder was a very clever musician, who came over here from England with the Lyster Opera Co., led orchestra here for a time and then went to California. Thence he sailed for Australia, where he died in 1867. George F. Bristow was once in a theatrical orchestra. He has written symphonies worthy to be played by Jullien's orchestra, as they were here and in Europe. It is said that Jullien remarked: "Beethoven has written good music, but no better." Henry J. Tissington was another of the old time leaders. He came here with the Worrell Sisters from California about 1866. For fourteen years he was at the Union Square Theatre. He died in this city April 16, 1886.

There has been a great change of late years in the style of theatrical music. There was a time when people went to the theatre to be instructed and elevated. Now they go to be amused. Standard overtures are seldom played any more, but in their place we have medleys of popular songs, negro ballads, selections from opera bouffe and solos upon novel instruments. The imitation rage was inaugurated by Jullien. He had a great genius for imitating any sounds he wished to introduce for effect in his pieces, from bird calls and katydid chirps up to the clatter and roar of a railroad train or the booming of cannon. He used to have a drum pretty nearly as big as a street railroad car, for use in battle pieces. Only his genius and the perfection of the magnificent orchestra he conducted saved his novelties from the stigma of claptraps. But what an orchestra that was! Never one in this country to match it before or since. Never anywhere so many great solo performers together. There was Bottesina, bass; Koenig, cornet; Davigne, hautboy; Weible, flute; Hughes, ophicleide; the two Mollenhauers, violinists, and a wonderful clarionet player. Speaking of Koenig, reminds me of an incident that occurred in London. Sims Reeves was engaged to sing at a concert, and when the engagement was offered to him he asked:

"Is Koenig to play in the concert?"

He was answered: "Yes."

Then, said he, "you understand I sing before he plays, if at all."

"Why?"

"Because that fellow sings with his instrument."

The evening's bill consisted of "Three Fingered Jack," "The Robber's Wife," "Shot in the Eye," and "The Two Drovers." Edwin Brink was in the last two mentioned.

July 7 a benefit was given to Manager F. W. Hofle. Mrs. W. G. Jones, who had been the leading lady from 1867, severed her connection with this house with the close of Mr. Hofle's management. The house then underwent a complete remodeling. A considerable sum was expended, and when done the result was an almost entirely new theatre, which combined all the modern requisites for comfort, and was a model of elegance and good taste. The tall, fluted pillars were filled in half way to the top, and the porch made into the lobby, with swinging doors. An elaborate cornice was added, and the whole front profusely ornamented and highly frescoed. The "gallery of the gods" became a thing of the past, as it was taken away and a parquet, parquet circle, dress and family circle constituted the auditorium. A new stage was put in with all the latest mechanical appliances and improvements, new scenery provided, and the general aspect of the auditorium much brighter than formerly. The entire auditorium was elaborately decorated and frescoed, the prevailing tints being sky blue and gold, with the walls and dome painted a light lavender color, the dome having painted thereon nine figures representing the Muses.

The alterations were all made from July, 1879, to September, and the house opened to the public as a German theatre Thursday, Sept. 11, 1879, with William Kramer as proprietor, Mathilde Cottrelly directress and Gustav Amberg business manager. It was called the Thalia Theatre. At the inaugural performance Mathilde Cottrelly, in the character of Thalia, delivered a prologue. Various characters passed before the audience during the recital, representative of the poetry, heroism and sentiment of different ages, and subsequently they were grouped in a striking and effective tableau. It was followed by Schiller's tragedy, "Kabale und Liebe" ("Intrigue and Love"), the management having selected it as a fit successor of "William Tell," another of Schiller's works, which was played in English July 7. The company consisted of Mmes. Cottrelly, Von Trautmann, Fiebach, Kelly, Krauft, Liebe, Horn, Abl, Schlarg, Telle, Weiss, Spitzner, Grothusen, Arnold, Camara, Grunewald, Swartz, Conried, Adolfi, Dombronsky, Luke, Schoenfeld, Schuelle, Schmitz, Puls, Hauser, Rohbeck, Wagner, Loe, Lenoir, Jurgens, Weinacht, Schlieman, Kreutzberg, Peze, Rothschild, Schneider and Grunewald. DOROTHY DORR.

The comely and talented young lady whose portrait adorns our first page was born in Medford, Mass., Dec. 23, 1867, and is the daughter of a prominent physician, who died in 1885. She received a most liberal education, including the study of music, a good knowledge of which she acquired at the Boston Conservatory of Music. Miss Dorr possesses a rich mezzo soprano voice, fully cultivated. She made her professional debut June 16, 1887, at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, as Rachel in "Held by the Enemy." During the following March she appeared as Ethel Gray in "The Golden Giant" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, this city (her debut here), and again made a success. Soon afterwards she arranged with Aug. Daly to join his stock company, but she did not get a chance to appear. Tiring of this enforced inactivity, she applied to J. M. Hill for an engagement. Mr. Hill arranged with her, after hearing her recite, to create the role of Ethel Sorerro in "A Possible Case," she making her first appearance in the original production of that comedy at the Amphion Academy, Williamsburg, March 16, 1888. She made the hit of the piece, and continued until the company's season closed, at the Madison Square Theatre, June 2. She has been re-engaged for the same role for next season, opening Sept. 3 in Boston. Miss Dorr is comely and possesses a stage presence of exceptional grace and attractiveness. During her brief career she has risen to a high place in the theatrical world.

THE LATE JOHN ROBINSON.

John Robinson, whose death we briefly mentioned last week, was probably the oldest manager in America. His sons claim that he was born in Schenectady, N. Y., while other members of his family say that Little Falls, N. Y., was the place of his birth. Mr. Robinson used to say that he was born in Albany, N. Y., July 22, 1807. These discrepancies may have arisen from the fact that he ran away when only nine years of age, and did not see the home of his parents, Utica, N. Y., until he was twenty-two, then being recognized by his mother while riding at the head of a circus procession through the streets of the town. In further proof of the fact that his birth ante-dates the year of 1807 is the fact that he was a four horse rider with a circus in Boston in 1816, according to his own statements. A newspaper published in Utica, N. Y., in 1821, gives among the registered voters of the town the name of John Robinson Jr. John was the eldest of the four sons of John and Nancy Boyd Robinson. John Robinson Sr. was a blacksmith, born and raised in Aberdeen, Scot., whence he emigrated to America just at the close of the revolutionary war. For a number of years following he acted as captain of a vessel sailing between Glasgow and New York, but about 1807 abandoned the sea and located at Albany, N. Y. Having served for many years the Queen of England as a Scotch grenadier, he was now made the recipient of a handsome pension, and, as wealth was estimated in those primitive days, ranked as among the richest of the moneyed men of his adopted city. Withal, however, he was a severe man. His son John was of the same cast of mettle, as were Aleck, James and Boyd; but John, being the eldest, felt more frequently and keenly the force of his father's anger. Finally, when only nine years of age, he left home. For some trivial fault his father had promised him a whipping, and fearing the violence of the paternal temper, young John sought to avoid him, and was given secret shelter by his mother for well nigh a fortnight. His patience exhausted at last, he crept out from his hiding place one night, and, gathering up a few traps, he tied the lot in an old bandanna handkerchief, and, taking with him a rusty single barrel shot gun, started across the fields and through the woods. For several days he skulked along in the dark shadows of the forest, fearing detection and a consequent forcible return to his home. Coming rather unexpectedly upon the canal bank, however, and somewhat emboldened by hunger, he ventured to hail an approaching boat and was finally given a berth aboard. He had scarcely ceased thanking the fates for this bit of good luck, when his uncle overtook the craft and insisted that he be put ashore. John stoutly denied all knowledge of his well meaning relative, and the captain and crew resisted his taking away. Thus protected, the boy continued his journey, finally bringing up at Newport, R. I., where he found employment as a chore boy about the village tavern. Within a month of his arrival there came to Newport Buckley & Wicks' Circus, the first whose performances were ever witnessed by young Robinson. His boyish head was completely turned by their marvelous beauty and the glitter of the gold and tinsel trappings, and he determined to become a circus performer. Being rather active and quite an adept at tumbling and leaping, he soon succeeded in attracting the attention of one of the showmen, and at his request was added to the list of employes of Buckley & Wicks. He seldom entered the ring, and in none of his doings gave promise of the great things he was to afterwards accomplish. Always keen, active, energetic, determined and resolute, he was yet so young and thoroughly inexperienced that his associates and careless observers thought but little of his future. However, spurred on by a great ambition, he struggled unceasingly to attain the one end of a thorough proficiency in his chosen calling. Some six or eight years had rolled by, and he was still with Buckley & Wicks. He had heard nothing from home, nor had he communicated with father, mother or brothers. In the Winter of 1816 Buckley & Wicks' Circus brought up at Boston, seeking shelter from the bitter blasts of a fierce New England Winter, in a rather comfortable if not commodious barn, just at the outskirts of the city. Young Robinson's ambition was prodigious, and, having discovered that the star of any circus organization at that day must necessarily be a rider, he determined to become a master of the pad saddle before the Winter closed. Horses he had not, especially those trained to the purpose, as these were usually the individual property of the riders, and kept away from the common circus sheds. A boy of John Robinson's force of character was not to be deterred from a purpose by a difficulty such as this, however, and the resolve of becoming an equestrian having been made, he began looking about for means of its accomplishment. There were the baggage horses—why not try them? They had never "run the ring," it was true, but they could be broke, and that they should be was at once determined upon. One night, when every one had left the barn or shed, John slipped from his bed, lighted a few tallow dips about the practice ring, and then brought out the lead horse of the baggage team. Round and round the twain kept moving until morning, when both rider and steed had become so thoroughly exhausted that to move further was a matter almost impossible. The next night, or rather morning, the young Hercules was at it again, and he did not rest until daylight. When the first horse had been thoroughly broken, a second was brought out, and then a third, and finally a fourth, John bestriding them all at once, and handling them in such a manner as eventually to win the greatest renown. Thus, under the cover of darkness, unassisted, discouraged frequently by the fear of discovery and instant discharge, did he labor on, until in the end he was the greatest four horse rider in the country. Not until the show was ready to take the road in the Spring, however, did the audacious stripling present himself to Buckley & Wicks to make known his desire to appear before the public as an equestrian. From this on he was the star of the Buckley & Wicks arena, and frequently related with pride the startling poster gotten out by the managers announcing his daring act. This, as he frequently declared, was the first piece of pictorial show printing ever gotten out in America, and some thirty years afterwards, as manager of his own show, he used to carry a bundle or two of almost the same paper in a pair of saddle bags going ahead to bill the coming of the circus. He became famous through the New England country, and as early as 1828 created quite a sensation as a rider in New Orleans. He first went to Cincinnati with a circus in 1836. His was the second show, according to his statement, of any pretensions that had ever crossed the Allegheny Mountains. The outfit consisted of three wagons, five horses and a seventy-five foot round top tent. They pitched their canvas in an open lot where the Dennison Hotel now stands, then on the outskirts of the town. The show remained there for very nearly a month, the custom in that day being to make long stops. Mr. Robinson was so taken with this Western country that he did not return to the East for many years. His ventures in the West were not always financially successful, and it was about the years 1851 or 1852 that he began to accumulate wealth. In the Eastern country he conducted riding schools, having owned one in Rochester, N. Y., which brought him very slight pecuniary returns, and another in Albany or Utica, where he taught fencing as well. During the many vicissitudes of early life he drifted into Charleston, S. C., and Savannah, Ga., in both of which cities he conducted theatres, the one in Charleston being a house of considerable note. There the elder Booth, Kean, Macready, Charlotte Cushman and others appeared. Whenever he found a star or traveling combination not up to his ideas of the high artistic, he closed the doors on them and announced with big placards to the public that they were unworthy of patronage, and that he had forbidden their appearance upon his stage. Both in Charleston and New Orleans he appeared upon the stage himself in the equestrian drama. He produced such pieces as "The Cataract of the Ganges" and "Timour, the Tartar," with as high as thirty and forty horsemen in single scenes. In "Timour, the Tartar," he trained the steeds to rear up against the "great walls of China," while their riders engaged in broadsword combat with soldiers upon the parapets. One of his most daring achievements in the way of the horse drama was in driving a four horse coach at full speed up and down the mountain "runs" in a sensational representation of "Dick Turpin." He headed his own circus for half a century, the show that bears his name having been known as the John Robinson Show for some sixty years. At the outset of his career as a circus manager he was generally associated with partners, the first being Foster. Afterward he had as associates Gil Eldridge, for whom his son Gil is named, and at another period Wm. Lake, the show being known as Robinson & Lake's. As to just how he came into possession of his first interest as a manager it is a little difficult to say. He was fond of telling of a circus stranded somewhere in the wilds of Tennessee that he bought for a mere song, owing to the mutiny of the canvasmen and employes. His story was something as follows: The managers of this show, rather inexperienced men, found themselves in a then lawless district of the State named, with their people, headed by a notorious desperado, completely in possession of their circus property, camped out like so many road agents and refusing to allow performances to be given or the canvas to be moved. As the only alternative they started North, hoping to find some one able to get them out of their difficulty. By a peculiar circumstance they ran across John Robinson. Explaining their dilemma to him he agreed to take the show off their hands at a mere nominal figure. Having concluded the purchase, with a boldness characteristic of him he started immediately for the scene of trouble. Arriving at the small town some half a mile from which the tent was spread, Uncle John obtained a gun from the tavern keeper and, not being able to find buckshot in sufficient quantity, he loaded both barrels with a handful of slugs and shingle nails. Waiting for the darkness of night he stealthily approached the canvas. Within were the mutineers grouped about a camp fire in the centre of a ring enjoying a high orgie. Of a sudden the canvas was thrown up, and upon the opposite bank of the ring stood the towering form of John Robinson. His gun was at his shoulder, and, having marked his victim, he asked in stentorian tones: "Where is the man who thinks he can run my shows?" Several in the group immediately recognized him as the famous John Robinson, then the "Hercules of the Ring." The whisper quickly went about, and even the most desperate of the lot threw up their hands and begged for mercy. In a few moments all hands were at work, and before the dawn things were in order—everybody docile—and early in the afternoon of the following day the first performance that had been given in many weeks by that outfit was enjoyed by the people of the vicinity. From that time on John Robinson carried his newly acquired "moral circus" in triumph through Tennessee and the South, as far as New Orleans. His other circuses, notably the Robinson & Eldridge, and Robinson & Lake, were on a more pretentious scale, and brought him conspicuously before the public as a manager. He was particularly popular throughout the South and West. As late as two years ago, while the Robinson Circus, under the management of his son, John, was traveling through Georgia and South Carolina, he joined them simply upon call of his old admirers in those districts, and in Atlanta, Charleston, Savannah and other cities, he was accorded perfect ovations by the citizens. Many of his performers were taken as apprentice boys from the South, prominent among them being John Lowlow, the clown, who was an Atlanta boy, having been taken up as an apprentice by Uncle John thirty odd years ago, and remaining with the circus yet. John Robinson first located in Cincinnati, going from New Orleans in 1852, in the latter part of which year he purchased his present residence. He brought his wife's mother and sister with his family, and established them in his newly acquired home, which for years they conducted something upon the principle of a boarding establishment for the employees of the circus. Here it was that he raised his boys, John Jr., Gil, Frank, James, Charles and his many apprentices, among them John Wilson, the four horse rider, and "Little Jim Robinson," as he is called, his correct name being James Fitzgerald, the bareback rider. Hernandez was another of the boys brought up under his tutelage. He died while still in the flush of early manhood, somewhere in South America. The list of performers educated for the arena and raised under his roof, or canvas, as it might more properly be called, would string out almost without limit, as no other man in the circus world ever handled so many successful apprentices. All of his boys were raised in the arena. John Jr., the manager of the show at present, was carried about on his father's head when barely three years of age. He graduated finally as a bareback rider, and was considered one of the best general tumblers and leapers ever with the show. His increasing flesh necessitated his withdrawal from the ring, and he was put in front of the house, finally becoming the active manager of the show. Gil, the second son, was a tumbler and carpet acrobat; Frank was a clown; Jim was a rider, he and Uncle John's nephew, Alex's Jim, as he was called, being in their turn two of his most famous barebacked pupils. Charles, the youngest son, never saw any really active service in the ring, as about the time he could have been of service Uncle John was withdrawing from active service circus life. All of the boys were accorded the fullest educational facilities. There was but one daughter, Katie, who married Robert Stickney, by whom she had one son, Robert Stickney Jr., who survives her. These children were all the fruits of a second marriage, Uncle John having married his first wife, Margaret Yates, in 1835, at Schenectady; but, the union not proving happy, they separated, he afterward marrying Elizabeth Bloomer, a famous equestrienne, who died Christmas Eve, 1879. For many years Mr. Robinson had not been actively attentive to the circus, his eldest son John having been the sole owner and proprietor for some eight or nine years, most of Uncle John's time being given to his Cincinnati property, of which Robinson's Opera House is the most valuable. Physically Mr. Robinson was almost a giant and many are the seemingly incredible stories told of his wonderful strength in the prime of manhood. Until within late years he scarcely knew a day's sickness, and even in the hour of death was a wonderfully well preserved man. As a mere incident may be related that, with one blow of his fist, he had been known to strike an unruly horse dead. Mr. Robinson was a very charitable man, and it is said that he once discharged a collector for using profane language to one of his tenants because she could not pay her rent. Yet he was profane himself and quick tempered. His estate is reported to be worth between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. In 1875 he was nominated by the Republicans for Mayor of Cincinnati, but was defeated. His funeral took place Aug. 6. The Rev. H. D. Moore delivered the address. The floral tributes were considered the handsomest ever seen in Cincinnati. The house was unable to hold the crowd who wished to pay their last respects to the dead. The pallbearers were: John Robinson, Gilbert Robinson and Charles Robinson, his sons; Boyd Robinson, his nephew; John Robinson Jr. and Robert Stickney Jr., grandsons. The interment was in the Robinson mausoleum in the Grove Spring Cemetery.

The excellent portrait of Mr. Robinson printed herewith is from a photograph taken about five weeks prior to his death, by Levi & Gold, of Cincinnati. To The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette we are indebted for most of the foregoing facts.

NEW YORK CITY.

Review of the Week.—Effie Elisler's Summer engagement at the MADISON SQUARE came to an end Saturday night, Aug. 11, with "Judge Not" as the closing play. Its two weeks' run had been attended with measurably better results, artistic and monetary, than had the fortnight's trial of "The Keepsake," its predecessor.....'Nadjy" at the CASINO, "Prince Methusalem" by the McCaull Co. at WALLACK'S, and German comic operas at TERRACE GARDEN were successful continued bills. .....The dark theatres were DALY'S, DOCKSTADER'S, the FIFTH AVENUE, FOURTEENTH STREET, LYCEUM, STANDARD, HARRIGAN'S PARK, ACADEMY, BIJOU, GRAND, THIRD AVENUE, NIBLO'S, PEOPLE'S, STAR, TONY PASTOR'S, UNION SQUARE, METROPOLITAN and all the vaudevilles save the NATIONAL.....The WINDSOR, still under the careful management of Frank B. Murtha, opened for the season of 1888-9 Saturday night, 11, with Harry Kennedy's "Lights and Shadows" Co. as the initial combination. .....POOLE'S THEATRE, continuing its plan of very low prices, and nine performances weekly by stray companies, opened for the new season Saturday night, 11, with J. B. Studley in "Nick of the Wood." Both these openings are elsewhere referred to in detail.....The first week of the resumed season at H. R. JACOBS' OLD BOWERY (THALIA) THEATRE drew fairly good houses with "The Black Flag" as the inaugural bill. Disagreeable weather did much to discourage large business here, as well as at two or three other theatres.

Worth's Palace Museum.—This house was opened to the public for the first time Monday afternoon, Aug. 13. The auditorium was well filled at all hours during the first day. Prof. Worth has fulfilled in every particular the promises he has made to the public, and it must be gratifying to him to note the appreciative manner in which his efforts were received by his first audiences. In every respect is the house attractive in itself, and also in the numberless curiosities and relics on exhibition. The Professor's museum is one of the finest collections of its kind in the world. Its attractiveness is made brilliant by the comprehensive and interesting lectures of its owner. Every minute object is known to him, and the pleasure and pride he takes in the description and history of each article make them all the more valuable in the eye of the visitor. The arrangement of this large collection has been done in excellent taste and convenience. The other interesting points of the curio halls are: Amy Arlington and her den of snakes, which she handles as one would domestic pets; then there is Balbroma, who indulges in all kinds of fire exhibitions; Princess Alga, the Circassian, is also one of the interesting features. The stage performances take place at two and four o'clock in the afternoon, and at seven and nine in the evening. These attractions are of high class, and introduce Chas. H. Stanley and Lizzie Conway in a bright musical sketch; Herr Bagessen, the pleasing contortionist; Mamie Conway, in her repertory of songs; John Fenton, in terpsichorean endeavors; Nellie Collins, in a singing turn; Marion and Belle, in clever sketch work, and Frank Walsh and Ed. H. Banker in specialties of a high class. The entertainment is interesting and of the best sort. The executive staff of the house is: Prof. E. M. Worth, proprietor; C. A. Wilson, manager; Gus Marx, treasurer; Milton P. Lyons, stage manager; Thos. F. Murphy, musical director, and Isaac Smith, doorkeeper. A change of attractions will be made each week, the announcements for week of 20 being: Frank and Lillie Weston, Maude Thorne, Mason and Edwards, Fox and Watson, Geo. Scobey, Chas. H. Duncan, Frank and Nellie Diamond, and John Till and his marionettes. The house will be open from one to ten P. M. daily, and at no time will there be a lack of an entertainment of some kind. If the business of the opening days are a criterion to go by, the prosperity of the venture is assured. The following is a description of the house: The front is painted Indian red, relieved with gold, and is brilliantly illuminated by gas. The lobbies are of mahogany and fancy stained glass. The hall on the lower hall front contains living curiosities, the rear being occupied as the amusement hall with a stage, 30x35 feet, nicely arranged and handsomely decorated, the artist being E. L. Vente. The division which shuts out the promenade on the second floor from the amusement hall is painted in medallion scenes, varied and artistic. The seating capacity of this hall is about 500, a handsome folding opera chair being used. The box in the balcony seats about 60. The ventilation is perfect, the sliding roof making the building pleasant in Summer. Prof. Worth's lecture room is on the second floor overlooking Fourteenth Street. The halls to the west of this one will be devoted principally to living wonders. There are also platforms here for lecture and exhibition purposes.

London Theatre Reopens.—The Fall season of this East Side house was inaugurated in brilliant style Saturday evening, Aug. 11, at which time the theatre was crowded in every part with a most appreciative audience. The alterations and decorations of the house have been done in the most thorough manner, and reflect credit on the generosity of the management and the skill of the people employed to do the work. The front is most attractively painted a pale green for the upper part, with dark green, relieved by gold stripes, at the bottom. The entrance and lobby are in cherry, and the new tiled floor of black, white and red marble render it most attractive, the name of the theatre appearing in the centre of the tiling. The lower floor is a delight to the eye, with its chairs, richly decorated walls, new paint, nickel partition rails, and its aisles covered with linoleum. The seating capacity of this portion of the house has been enlarged and changed. The front rows are now fifty cent seats, the middle thirty-five and the back ones twenty-five cents. This, we think, is a change for the better. The orchestra, still under the able directorship of Robert Recker, occupy a most comfortable place, handsomely inclosed by a nickel rail. The balcony has been thoroughly renovated and made more convenient. That popular part of this house, the gallery, has been improved as much as any other portion of the theatre, and looks bright and clean with fresh paint and decorations. The aisles of the balcony and gallery are covered with linoleum. The ceiling is a thing of beauty, in blue, red and gold, the work being in most excellent taste and in elaborate designs. The fronts of the balcony and gallery have also been richly decorated in light tints, relieved with gold. The boxes are gorgeous in rich gold paper and other decorations. New and handsome gas fixtures have been put in, and add much to the sightliness of the auditorium. The stage conveniences and adornments have not been neglected. F. Friend, of Brooklyn, has furnished entire new sets of scenery, and they are most excellent ones, complete in every particular. The entire stage arrangements have also been thoroughly attended to. The dressing rooms have been put in comfortable shape. In fact the whole house has been beautified in every part, and now looks like a new place. The opening of the house also celebrated the forty-third birthday of its popular proprietor and manager, James Donaldson Jr. He had forgotten that it was his birthday, so busy had he been getting things in readiness for the opening. It was brought pleasantly to his mind by a call during the afternoon from a number of his friends, who came to congratulate him on the event. The executive staff for the coming season is: James Donaldson Jr. & Co., proprietors; James Donaldson Jr., manager; Edwin A. Bull, treasurer; Thos. H. Keogh, assistant treasurer; John Simmons, advertiser and principal doorkeeper; Robert Recker, director of music; Ed. Mills, properties, and Alfred Russell, head usher, with five assistants. With the exception of the new fifty cent seats, the prices remain the same as last season's. The inaugural attraction was the popular Lilly Clay Gaiety Co., under the management of Sam T. Jack, who caught the fever of the opening and the much improved appearance of the house, and succeeded in adding much to the general effect by the display of many new and rich costumes and other novelties of stage arrangement and acts. It was the formal debut of the troupe in their programme for the Fall and Winter campaign, and their manager is to be congratulated on the effectiveness and good taste displayed in his selection of people and acts. The programme is thus made up: The first part is called "Beauty in Dreamland," and introduces four end men (R. Van Osten, Ned West, Arthur Hughes and Dave Foster); Fanny Lewis occupies the middle, and the company is seen to advantage in artistic groupings. The singing was of excellent quality. The olio was bright with the endeavors of Irene Von Rokoy, Ned West, the Gaiety Four (Foster, Hughes, Fannie Lewis and Dora Reynolds), the Metropolitan Four (Carrie Wilson, May Clarke, Madge Davenport and Emma Ward), Bolton and Bradford, the La Porte Sisters, Hilton, Rose and Martin Julian and others. "Robinson Crusoe" was done in fine shape, with the following in the cast: Robinson Crusoe, Fanny Lewis; Chickabiddy, Dora Reynolds; Friday, Robert Van Osten; Hildebrandt Fitz Spoon, Dave Foster; Darwin Crowley, Arthur Hughes; Primmypyo, May Clark; Halfmoon, Waving Widow, Sunrise, chums of the Princess, Emma Ward, Carrie Wilson, Annie Walters; Crowquill, Marion Hartranft; Swandown, Kate Ashford; Rosebud, Christina Cobuy; Crocus, Madge Davenport, Mignon, Rose Hamilton; Sea Foam, May Stone; Polyanthese, Rhode Hirsch; Sweet Thyme, Rachel Wolfe; Daffodil, Ruby Brant; Evening Glow, Marion Turner; Twilight, Miss Walters. The London Theatre Specialty Co. are announced for week of 20.

Combination Houses Reopen.—The metropolitan season of 1888-9 has had a notable start within the week, the doors of the Windsor, Jacobs' Third Avenue, Broadway and Poole's having been thrown back after the usual Summer recess.....

At the Windsor, Manager Murtha inaugurated the eighth regular season Saturday night, Aug. 11, with a very creditable representation of Charles Gayler's melodrama, "Lights and Shadows," under the management of Harry Kennedy, and headed by May Newman. The house has been thoroughly renovated, and is as clean and as bright as a new pin, neither pains nor expense having been spared to promote the comfort of its patrons, while catering to their amusement. The house, under Manager Murtha's able direction, should experience a most prosperous season, the bookings, as usual, being solid and attractive. Of the opening night it is only necessary to say that the audience completely filled the house, and was correspondingly enthusiastic. Every good point in the play was applauded, while the machinations of the villain were roundly hissed. Mr. Kennedy's new company (this was their first stand) contain some good people, and gave, if anything, a better rendition of the play than that seen at the Standard at the close of last season. The scenery is good, and, what is more, it was well handled, the studio scene in acts second and fifth being correct both as to detail and effect. The view of the Palisades on the Hudson also was a neat bit of artistic realism. Miss Newman gave a touching portrayal of the unfortunate Mary Bland, the sentiment of the part seeming to fit her to a nicety. Manager Murtha was kept busy receiving the congratulations of his friends, who are legion. "Lights and Shadows" is now cast thus: Mary Bland, Mabel Milburn, May Newman; Edith Broughton, Agnes Herndon; Kate Stanhope, Jennie Williams; Mrs. Bleeker, Adelaide Thornton; Mother Meg, Ida Jeffreys; Mark Milburn, Sheridan Block; Rufus Milburn, Harry Custer; Judge Broughton, David Hanchett; Archy Bleeker, Chas. Klein; Max Wilton, H. S. Duffield; Claude Maul, C. F. Gotthold; Tom, W. L. Gleason; Chief of Detectives, W. T. Doyle; Sergeant, Clarence Moor. The general agent is Frank Irving, and Mr. Gleason is stage manager. The Windsor's staff this season is: Frank B. Murtha, sole manager; Theo. Myers, treasurer; Den. J. Shelley, assistant treasurer; Alonzo Gertie, advertising agent; Ralph M. Bechtel, scenic artist; James Curwood, master machinist; Sylvester J. Keeley, master of properties; James O'Brien, engineer gas and lights; John Kurtz, doorkeeper; Fred Younker, leader of orchestra. Next week, Gardiner's "Fate" Co.....Monday afternoon, Aug. 13, H. R. JACOBS' THIRD AVENUE THEATRE was formally dedicated for the new season. Since its closing in the Spring much has been done to beautify and make comfortable this prosperous theatre. The front has been retouched and looks bright. The lower part of the auditorium is very attractive, with new and rich paper on the walls, new carpets in the aisles, a handsome new ceiling on the balcony, an extensive brass railing at the back of the last rows of seats, and many other improvements. The boxes on both floors are now rich in new carpets and decorations. The balcony adornments have been thoroughly attended to, and its sightliness thereby enhanced. The gallery has been thoroughly renovated and made more comfortable. Every part of the house shows that the decorator and painter have done their work in the best manner, and have carefully carried out the liberal plans of the management. The gallery has been made absolutely safe by the addition of supporting beams, on which the weight now rests, and not on the walls, as heretofore. New steam heating apparatus and a new boiler have been put in, of sufficient capacity to thoroughly warm the house in the coldest weather. The new ventilating arrangements will insure pure air. New gas fixtures, with electric lighting wires, also add much to the attractiveness. The stage appointments have been carefully attended to. Much new scenery has been added, and the dressing rooms have been made attractive and comfortable with new paint and carpets. Elegant large mirrors now adorn the walls of the lower part of the house. The executive staff for the coming season is: H. R. Jacobs, manager; W. A. Edwards, acting manager; R. H. King, treasurer; G. A. Blumenthal, assistant treasurer; E. M. Slocum, advertising agent; Ralph Maziotta, musical director; P. D. Quinn, main doorkeeper; Fred Cody, head usher, with eight assistants; P. Flannigan, properties; Wm. Hughes, carpenter, and Alex. Murray, gasman. The audience at the first performance of the season was of large size, and apparently enjoyed the startling situations of "Passion's Slave," which was adequately staged and otherwise creditably done by the strong company under T. H. Winnett's management. The special scenery used was commendable. The piece was well performed by the following cast: Manuel Defoe, O. H. Barr; Ferdinand Shepley, Julius Scott; Gen. Briscoe, W. H. Whedon; Capt. Napoleon Bonaparte Shortsleeves, Frank Monahan; Butterworth Golight, John Peasley; Walter Briscoe, Chas. E. Bowen; Old Joe, Ed. Williams; Detective, F. Johnson; Postman, Chas. Knox; Mamie Briscoe, Abbie Pierce; Clotilde Dijon, Lizzie Fletcher; and Pattie Toogood, Laura Clairon. For week of 20: N. S. Wood, in "The Waifs of New York."..... The season at the BROADWAY THEATRE opened Monday night, Aug. 13, with a revival by the Duff Opera Co. of "The Queen's Mate." The cast was changed somewhat, Agnes Stone appearing as Inez, Edward Lowe as Pedrillo and Frederick Clifton (who also doubled Hans, his original role) as Guzman. Miss Stone is the well known grand opera singer, and this, we believe, was her first New York appearance in comic opera. She was cordially welcomed and contributed good vocal work, though her acting lacked spirit. "Edward Lowe" is in reality the son of Harry Paulton, and is also recalled as "Mostyn Tedde," the librettist. He was not successful as the innkeeper, his voice and methods alike being weak. Harry Paulton, Lillian Russell, W. H. Clark and J. H. Ryley repeated their former successes. The audience was large and appreciative. "The Queen's Mate" will run until Sept. 8, and the Broadway's dramatic season will open 10 with the first New York performance of "The Kaffir Diamond," adapted by E. J. Swartz from "The King of Diamonds." Louis Aldrich (star), Frazer Coulter, C. W. Bowser, J. A. Wilkes, Dora Goldthwaite, M. J. Jordan, W. H. Booker, C. D. Mackay, Isabelle Evesson and Adele Palma will appear in the cast. Frank G. Cotter is business manager for Mr. Aldrich. The executive staff of the Broadway remains as it was last season..... POOLE'S THEATRE, newly decorated and entirely renovated, opened for the season Aug. 11 with J. B. Studley in "Nick of the Woods." His support: E. W. Marston, E. J. Mack, Percy Meldon, H. R. Marshall, Chas. Drake, James Wilson, P. F. Backus, Mamie Ryan, Pope Cooke, A. Hart, Edith Crolius, Minnie Kissell, Mrs. E. W. Marston, Laura Newton, Alice Newton and Katie Ryan. Fair sized audiences characterized the beginning of the company's engagement, which continued week of Aug. 13, with ten performances. No change will be made in the policy of this house, the ten to fifty cent scale of prices remaining, together with the system of four matinees a week. John F. Poole is manager and proprietor, and his staff is the same as last season's.

JACOBS' THALIA THEATRE.—Two good sized audiences were present Aug. 13, when H. R. Jacobs' Own Vaudeville Co. opened for the week. The programme introduced Bryant and Holmes, George H. Wood, the Martens, Belle and Roger Dolan, the Caldwell Sisters, Frazer and West, Richard Pitrot, (his first appearance on the Bowery), Keating and Flynn, the Three Judges (their first appearance on the Bowery) and John Le Clair. Edwin Arden in "Eagle's Nest" is due 20.

KOSTER & BIAL'S CONCERT HALL.—James Owen O'Conor, supported by John K. Newman, remains an attractive feature. The new faces for week of Aug. 13 are: Fonte Boni Bros., the Four Emperors of Music, the Eddys, Geo. H. Gier and others.

"NERO" is still in its zenith of success at St. George, S. I. Business continues to be very large. With the exception of the evenings when the weather is unfavorable the immense seating capacity of the grounds is filled to overflowing. The fi.tieth performance will occur Aug. 24.

ON Aug. 15, at 10 o'clock, P. M., an entertainment will be given to some of the veterans of the Army of the Potomac and Northern Virginia, at the Cyclorama of the Battle of Gettysburg. A collation will be spread, after which the familiar scenes of the battle will be recalled in social intercourse. THE CLIPPER acknowledges an invitation to attend, from Manager J. M. Hill.

RUDOLPH ARONSON received a cablegram Aug. 10 from R. D'Oyly Carte, in London, stating that the new Gilbert and Sullivan opera will be ready for production at the Casino by the latter part of October, instead of Nov. 12. In view of this Mr. Aronson has decided to postpone the production of "Oolah," Francis Wilson's piece, until later in the season, continuing "Nadjy" to the time of the Gilbert and Sullivan production.

AFTER a properous Summer season Amberg's Thalia Opera Co. will close their second stay at Terrace Garden Aug. 18. "La Fille de Mme. Angot" was sung evening of 13, the following operas being announced for the balance of the week: "Fatinitza," "Boccaccio" and "Blaubart."

A. S. PENNOYER, manager of the Grand Opera House, Atlantic City, N. J., was a CLIPPER caller Aug. 13.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—A large audience was present Aug. 13, when an excellent programme was put on, introducing Mack and Raymond, Ferguson and Carol, Fata Morgana, the Collins Sisters, and Martin Hayden in "Jack Sheppard," assisted by O. B. Collins, Alf. A. and Mamie Wallace, Dave Roach, Wm. Cattel and W. T. Dulany. A bright feature of the show was the act by Mack ane Raymond. They are from the West, and this was their New York debut. Their turn is called "Trans ormation," and consists of taking songs and dances, free from the usually tiresome and conventional dialogue. M. D. Enger's Orchestra, under the d rection of Gus Herwig, rendered some excellent music.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE presents a scene of great activity. A small army of men are busily at work rebuilding this popular house. The new floor beams, which, by the way, are very heavy, weighing from 7,000lb to 11,600lb, are now in place and hereafter the work of reconstruction will be pushed apidly to completion.

THE MADISON SQUARE THEATRE, which was dark Aug. 13, reopened Tuesday night, 14, for the first performance on any stage of W. H. Gillette's comedy, "A Legal Wreck," the cast comprising Alfred Hudson, Sidney Smith, Boyd Putnam, Sidney Drew, George Fawcett, Ida Vernon, Nina Boucicault, Frances Graham, Elsie Lombard and Fanny Denham Rouse. A review of the performance is necessarily deferred until our next issue. Mr. Gillette is to hold the house until the return of the stock, and he may try another play before that time.

"PRINCE METHUSALEM" will be sung for the last time at Wallack's Aug. 18, by the McCaull Opera Co. On 20 "Lorraine" will be revived. "Boccaccio" will follow quickly.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE will open its season of 1888-9 Saturday night, Aug. 18, with the first stand of Kate Claxton's Co., in "The World Against Her."

THE LYCEUM THEATRE will reopen Aug. 20 with E. H. Sothern in "Lord Chumley," by H. C. De Mille and David Belasco, then to be acted for the first time on any stage. Mr. Sothern's engagement will last until the return of the Lyceum stock from their tour.

MANAGER H. C. MINER will inaugurate the regular season of the People's Theatre Aug. 20, with Effie Elisler in "Judge Not." Mr. Miner's Bowery vaudeville and the Eighth Avenue (Miner & Canary's) will open on the same date, each with a "house show."

NIBLO'S GARDEN will start its new season Saturday night, Aug. 18, with the first American performance of "Mathias Sandorf," by Bolossy Kiralfy's new company.

Manager McCloy tells me that the comic opera at Music Hall has been satisfactory in all respects; that Bella Fox has, during her engagement here, received offers from the Bostonians, Willard Spenser and Mr. Jacobs. Syracuse.—At the Wieting Opera House, Aug. 9, W. A. Mestayer's "Twenty to One" was done for the first time on any stage, with this cast: Baron Barouche, the polyglot papa, Thos. Q. Seabrooke; Chawles B. Honeysuckle, the dude, Happy Tim Hogan, Celtic, Signor Vermicelli Tomato, terpsichorean, Gun Wad Lung, Celestial, Mons. Emile Boulanger, operatic, Hans Creipsaick, Teutonic, Gus Bruno; Mary Ann Barouche, Irish Louie, Kate Quinton; Sunday Barouche, American, Elvia Crox; Julie Barouche, French, Polly McDonald; Victoria Barouche, English, Celia Volmer; Scotia Barouche, Scotch, Dulce Durant; Marron Barouche, Canadian, Marion Fiske; Gilletta Barouche Spanish, Ida Gabler; Adelina Barouche, Italian, Leopoldine Brantsch; Chew Chew Barouche, Chinese, Alice Coleman; Tulu Barouche, Japanese, Clara Coleman; Juleika Barouche, Greek, Annie Ferment; Olga Barouche, Russian, Ida De Somogyi; Danuba Berouche, Austrian, Anna Brantsch; Lisa Barouche, Swiss, Lina Reinle; Marianka Barouche, Hungarian, Matilde Jagemann; Edna Barouche, Welsh, Emily Woetes; Myra Barouche, Turkish, Marie Scherer; Gretchen Barouche, German, Pauline Holznecht; Cachita Barouche, Brazilian, Grace St. George; Dado Barouche, Egyptian, Belle Warren. The story briefly told is this: Baron Barouche (Thos. Q. Seabrooke) a polyglot papa, so called, is presented on the rise of the curtain as the father of twenty eligible daughters, born to him in various countries from America to the flowery Orient. They are all, therefore, natives of the several lands they first saw daylight in. The Baron has a longing, which will not be appeased, for marrying his progeny, in order that his household may be at peace. Then a dude, Chas. B. Honeysuckle (Gus Bruno), is introduced as a suitor for one of the fair daughters, but as his choice has fallen on one of the younger of the family he is put off until the first born go the ways of the nuptial altar. To hasten his own felicity Honeysuckle undertakes to court the score of pretty maidens in different disguises. This is all there is to the story, which is elaborated by the humorous situations made in the course of his (Bruno's) manifold amours. With considerable pruning and patching tLe piece may go. The main reliance at present is on the cleverness of Gus Bruno. Much of the music, which is new, will be heard to better advantage when more thoroughly learned. Prof. Hartl and his troupe of Viennese Lady Fencers were a revelation of the skill and agility with the foil and broadsword. Executive staff: C. J. Walker, sole manager; F. A. Slocum, business manager and treasurer; C. J. Singleton, special agent; Max Horter, musical director; Thos. Q. Seabrooke, stage manager: Wm. Ball, master of properties.

Rochester.—At the Grand Opera House the past week, the extreme hot weather did not deter lovers of minstrelsy from attending the performance of Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels Aug. 7, the house being filled. Although all in attendance had the pleasure of enjoying a sweat bath, they felt well repaid in witnessing an entertainment of the highest order in minstrelsy. Liberati's Band came 8 and gave two concerts before light attendance. "Twenty Maidens to One Dude" 10, 11, was well received. Dockstader's Minstrels are announced for 24.

Elmira.—The Opera House was packed to the doors to witness the inaugural performance of George Wilson's Minstrels Aug. 8. Before the curtain as ends the brass band play an opening march, and the drop arises during the selection. The orchestra occupy an elevated platform, and were attired in old gold satin suits, handsomely trimmed. The vocalists appeared in white faces, pondered wigs, and were costumed in white satin with gold lace trimmings. The comedians wore black satin coats, vests and Knickerbockers. The first part is christened "Monte Cristo," and the rich and brilliant costumes present an imposing appearance. The applause was hearty. The end men in the first edition were J. Marcus Doyle and Den Delmanning as bones, with Frank Chase and Archie Delmanning opposite, Frank Dumont acting as interlocutor. A sextette, nicely rendered by Walling, Gale, Lewis, Shattuck, Nolan and Charles, was the first feature, after which J. Marcus Doyle presented "I Guess Not." Thomas Lewis was heard in "The Hermit," then Archie Delmanning gave "Haul That Wood Pile Down," introducing wing dancing by the Delmanning Bros. Then came George Wilson and Billy Carter, and the second edition was opened by an overture, "Old Time Rocks," arranged by W. W. Barbour. Walling, Lewis, Gale and Shattuck rendered "The Bridge." George Wilson's "Walking the Floor with Baby" was given in his inimitable manner and caught the house. Will Walling's "Bid Me Good Bye and Go" was followed by Billy Carter's humorous song, 'Ring Dem Bells." Then came Geo. Gale's serenade, "Open Thy Lattice." A burlesque by Frank Dumont, entitled "Torchlight Procession and Ratification Meeting," closed the first part. The olio was opened by Frank O'Brien in his knockabout eccentricities. He made a pronounced hit, and was vociferously encored. "Dancing in Maple Grove," arranged by the Delmanning Brothers and executed by six song and dance men, was a decided feature. George Wilson was next. To say that he caught the house would be superfluous. His encores were numerous. Swift and Chase's musical act was followed by J. Marcus Doyle's clever idea, "Cupid Clog," nicely costumed and artistically executed, introducing George Gale's living tableaux. Billy Carter in banjo solos was next; then came Du Val, the contortionist. An excellent entertainment closed with D'Ennery the prestidigitateur, assisted by Little Emile, in "The Black Art." Special mention should be made of the street parade. The members of the company wore light colored pantaloons, Prince Albert coats and light colored high hats, and elicited many favorable comments. The company is composed of W. F. Dickson, proprietor; Joseph D. Daniels, manager; Geo. T. Fisher, advance representative; Bert Davis, press agent; Billy Carter, stage manager; C. F. Shattuck, vocal director; W. W. Barbour, musical director; George Wilson, Swift and Chase, the Delmanning Bros., Frank O'Brien, J. Marcus Doyle, M. Talbot, Geo. Gale, Thomas Lewis, Will Walling, George Barlow, Bobby Newton, J. Spencer, Chas. J. Bramhall, Thomas Ludy, W. N. Wood, William Hass, John Murcott, Alf. Carroll, L. A. Burrows, F. P. Lancaster.—Proctor's Fulton Opera House, as the place will hereafter be called, has been much improved during the Summer. The front has been repainted and a new composition pavement laid. The lobby has been frescoed and a tile floor put down. The manager's and box offices have been removed from the south to the north side of the lobby, and a separate entrance and ticket office made for the gallery. The old offices will be used for a cigar store. The manager's office has been connected with the telephone and messenger service, and has a speaking tube to the stage. In the rear of this office is the ladies' toilet room. In the auditorium folding chairs have been placed in the parquet and two front rows of the circle and gallery, the parquet having two aisles. Lowering the stage floor and the orchestra box gives a better view from the front seats. Chas. Hinest has repainted all the old scenes and added a number of new ones. The dressing rooms, heretofore a source of terror to professionals, have been made as comfortable and convenient as possible. The Edison incandescent system has been supplied with patent resistance wires, by which the auditorium and stage lights may be regulated and new lights in the orchestra added. I. Burt Rinehart, stage manager for the past eleven years, has been retained. Christ. Burger will have charge of the orchestra of eight pieces. MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—One look at the "broadsides" in our leading Sunday publications Aug. 12, and you were fully assured that the theatrical season of 1888-9 is "dead on," so to speak. It has started fairly lively and the early evidences of activity promise much for a season of bustling, merry liveliness. Ere the current week closes Boston will have witnessed the reopenings of all her principal theatres.

BOSTON THEATRE.—There seems to be no doubt of the genuine success of "Mankind" at this theatre. This is its second and last but one week. Dan Maginnis has scored very heavily as the centenary villain, and Forrest Robinson is doing capital, clean work. After 25 "Mankind" will be withdrawn, and 27 Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels begin a week. Their show has been lavishly advertised, and the boom ought to count strongly. Denman Thompson's and George W. Ryer's new piece, "The Two Sisters," follows the burnt cork show, opening Sept. 3, and after that "The Crystal Slipper" will receive its first Boston presentation.

GLOBE THEATRE.—This is the second theatre to throw its doors open for the ensuing season. That feat was accomplished Aug. 13, when Johnson & Slavin's Minstrels commenced a week of black face merriment. Frederic Bryton follows 20 in "Forgiven" for a week, and then Robert Mantell succeeds with "Monbars" for its initial performance in this city Aug. 27.

BOSTON MUSEUM.—After a quick run over the N. Y. and N. E. Railroad from your city Sunday afternoon, 12, Roland Reed and company got themselves together and opened their season of 1888-9 with "The Woman Hater," at this house, Aug. 13. A fortnight's stay has been booked, and, as the bright young comedian is popular here, he should play to substantial success. From here Mr. Reed goes to your city, opening the Bijou Sept. 3. The forty-eighth regular dramatic season of the Museum will commence Aug. 27, when "The Bells of Haslemere" will be revived for a run.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—After a brief rest of a few weeks, this capacious and palatial temple of Thespis reopened for the regular season of 1888-9 with Ed. J. Hassan in "One of the Finest." Already has THE CLIPPER detailed the renovations and improvements made at this house during the Summer. Excellent bookings have been made, and the outlook is most gratifying to Managers Procter & Mansfield. A vast amount of preparation was made for the production of "One of the Finest," and my wiring tells you of the result. An artificial body of water, 75x25ft., and weighing, with the receptacle holding it, 1,300 pounds, making it the largest ever placed on the stage in this country, was prepared for the production, and the aquatic scene was thus made extremely enlivening. Due 20, "Around the World in Eighty Days."

THE HOLLIS STREET THEATRE is to reopen 18 with the elaborately arranged production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," under the management of Charles R. Gardiner and W. W. Randall, with Jay Rial as stage director. Most extensive indeed have been the preliminaries for this revival, and it will be for no lack of costly preparation if the show doesn't score strongly. I append the complete cast: Phineas Fletcher, Frank Mordaunt; Uncle Tom, Milt. G. Barlow; Simon Legree, Frank Losee; Marks, Harry Webber; George Harris, Mark Price; Henry St. Clair, J. N. Long; Tom Loker, E. A. Marshall; George Shelby, Chas. J. Greene; Eva, Little Carrie Webber; Eliza Harris, Lillian Eldridge; Cassy, Mercedes Malarini; Aunt Ophelia, Mrs. Louisa Eldridge; Chloe, Addie Davis; Queen Elizabeth, Louise Rial; Topsy, Alice Harrison. Frank Howson has furnished some special music, and Henry E. Hoyt contributes a raft of brand new scenery. It will be pushed for a run of at least three weeks. After its Hub stay "Uncle Tom" will go over to the Star Theatre in your city, to commence a season Oct. 1. Speaking of his bookings for the ensuing season, Manager Rich referred to Mary Anderson as about the leader of the attractions that the Hollis patrons will see, although there are Coquelin, with Jane Hading as leading lady; Frederick Warde, Thomas W. Keene, Robson and Crane, the New York Lyceum Co. in "The Wife," Augustin Daly's Co., E. H. Sothern, Helen Barry, H. E. Dixey in "Adonis," "She," by Frohman's Co.; "Evangeline," Gilmore's "Twelve Temptations" and "A Possible Case." There are others as yet unmentioned by Mr. Rich. "A Possible Case" is underscored for Sept. 3, and is to immediately follow "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It will be the first Boston performance of "A Possible Case."

GAIETY AND BIJOU.—The Gaiety Opera Co. are still a surprisingly strong attraction here. The fifth week of the operatic season began with the production of "Olivette" Aug. 13. In the olio which is offered in addition to the tuneful opera, Manager Keith presents this capital layout: Bella Cushing, Keating and Ardell, the Middletons, George Leslie and Miss Collins, Charles French, Leslie and Hardman, Clara and Frank Marion and Jerry Cohan. E. Garcia does a salterio solo.

HOWARD ATHENÆUM.—I came pretty near neglecting to mention the fact, and it's an imporiant one, too, that this veritable mint reopens Aug. 18 with Tony Pastor's Specialty Co. as the send off attraction. Lily Clay's Burlesque Co. follows, opening a week Aug. 27. The Howard has received the customary touching up here and there. Henry Chanfrau plays in "Kit" the week of Sept. 10. The Howard Athenæum Specialty Co. opens its season Sept. 10 at Bangor, and plays way along into the season before it strikes the Hub, and then it plays the Boston Theatre—Thanksgiving week at that. It is a result of Manager Harris playing nothing but first class, stiff priced houses. Mr. Harris and family are meanwhile serenely Summering at Brant Rock.

OAKLAND GARDEN.—An altogether realistic and gigantic production of "Pinafore" was given at this Summer-time resort 13. A full rigged ship of great proportions has been constructed, and the management has gone to considerable expense to render the revival as impressive as it is possible for stagecraft to make it. An army of persons are engaged, the principals being: Sir Joseph, Harry Brown; Capt. Corc

NEW JERSEY.

Atlantic City.—At the Grand Opera House, Tony Pastor's Co. played to crowded houses Aug. 9, 10, 11. Frank Moran's Minstrels, comprising Jos. M. Woods, Maxwell and Davis Adams, Casey and Howard, Murphy and Turner, the Brothers Williams and Frank Moran, come week of 13. The United States Fire Co. benefit 17.

PAIN'S AMPHITHEATRE.—A special performance of "The Burning of Moscow" will be given 15, when the Atlantic City police will benefit. Usual performances 16 and 18. Business is big.

HOWARD'S PIER.—"The Mikado," by the Rising & Hamilton Co., continues the attraction for week of 13. Good business has ruled.

APPLEGATE'S PIER.—The musical comedy "The Little Hoodoo," introducing the minstrels, remains.

CASINO.—The company mentioned last week closed with the performance given 9, having tired of playing without salaries. The house will probably be dark the remainder of the season.

GUVERNATOR'S PAVILION.—New people 13: Fernando Fleury, Hennings and Lee, the Williams, King Sisters, the Victorellis, John H. W. Byrne, May Stevens, and Mendoza and Flynn. Remaing: Dan Hart, Dollie Williams and Bryant and Saville. James Sheeran closed as manager 11. Business is big.

DOYLE'S PAVILIONS.—Bill at No. 1 for 13: Whippler Twins, Jennie Pickert, Mr. and Mrs. John McVickers, Harry Melville and Stella De Ray, Frank Mack, Mamie Sullivan, Landis and Ward, George Murphy and Kitty Wells, John B. Wills and May Adams, Whittey and Leary, Campbell and Evans, Sallie St Clair and Frank Goldie. Pavilion No. 2 opens for the remainder of the season 13, with Mackin and Curdy, Emma Bell, George Austin, Tommy and Nellie Heywood, Almony and Kent, Lynch Sisters, May Templeton, Lillian Paine, M. J. Fenton, James Graham, Tommy and Emma Harris and Annie Perkins. Leader of orchestra, Charles Kaufmann. Business is big.

BOWKER'S PALACE PAVILION.—New people 13: Gallagher and West, Dick Nugent, Dan Collins and Louise Garland. Remaining: Martinetti Bros., Willie Aherns, Needham and Kelly, Vanlur and Barton, May Stanton, Maud Chatwood, Eugene Notowitze and Carrie Edwards. Houses have been crowded.

ALBRECHT'S GARDEN.—People 13: The Tissots, John Murphy, Bland Sisters, Tillie Frank and Jones and Edwards. Business is good. Manager Jacoby will benefit some time this month.

WAVELETS.—John J. Kennedy, who is a prominent member of Ullie Akerstrom's Co., is finishing a new four act melodrama, entitled "A Brother's Crime." The piece will be played the coming season by the Lillian Kennedy Co., its first production to be at Scranton, Pa., week of 20. In event of its success Mr. Kennedy will take it out the following season with his own company. .....Manager Jacoby will run a light performance at the Ocean Parlor Rink all Winter .....Lew Simmons is noticed among the theatrical visitors here. He is very confident of the success of his new venture, "Fashions," which he takes out this season.....The Four Tourists have separated, Shaw and Heywood joining Frank Jones' "Si Perkins" Co.....The Sheerans join the World's Specialty Co., which opens its season 20 at Newark .....Wills and Adams will join Leavitt's Rentz-Santley Co. at Chicago 20 Charley Reynolds has been engaged for Ned Thomas' San Francisco Minstrels.

Trenton.—The season at Taylor's Opera House was formally opened Aug. 8 by Tony Pastor's Co. to a good house. The show was excellent, and Mr. Pastor had an individual reception which is seldom accorded here. The Opera House has a few improvements, including several new sets of scenery, but the elaborate improvements of last year rendered any additional expenditure unnecessary. The bookings for this month are light, and George Wilson's Minstrels, which comes 18, will undoubtedly catch big business. John Taylor, who is the largest stockholder in the Opera House, and after whom the place was named, failed on the opening day of the house, in his beef and wool business. At a meeting of the creditors held 13, Mr. Taylor's statement showed liabilities of $200,889.17 and assets of $94,984.11, leaving a ratio of about 47 per cent. He offered to pay 40 cents on the dollar, but accepted a unanimous proposition to pay 25c. and settle his indebtedness within thirty days. This is considered a very lenient settlement, and the people made the concessions because John Taylor has been one of the most public spirited citizens whom the city has had for a period of twenty years. Mr. Taylor's failure will in no way affect the Opera House, as he will soon be on his feet again, and his stock is in friendly hands. Harry C. Taylor will continue to do the booking of the house, as he has in the past two years .....The Masonic Temple will not be opened as a theatre this season.....The United States Hotel, formerly owned by Mrs. Harry A. Donnelly, which was a favorite stopping place for professionals, has been sold, and will be demolished in the Spring. Landlord Carey will continue at the house until April 1.

Burlington.—Howard Van Horn's new Western drama, "Craig's Hollow," was done at Birch's Opera House Aug. 6. [We believe this was its first performance on any stage.—ED. CLIPPER.] The cast: Jack Craig, a young hero, Howard Van Horn; Harry Morton, a gambler, William Edwards, a clerk, Cornelio Santos; Robert Anderson, an accomplice, James Daly; Geo. Anderson, brother to Robert, Joseph Hart; Chas. Crawford, a retired merchant, Chas. Young; Sambo Johnson, a faithful servant, Joseph Thompson; William Shepperd, a detective, Will Rankin; Hiram Jerry, an Irish lawyer, Geo. Norton; Geo. Wilson, a turnkey, George Stevens; John Daly, a policeman, Chas. Davis; Tough Bill, one of the boys, Chas. Kramer; Sookey Short, a servant, David Russell; Rose Crawford, an outcast, Clara Lambert; Lottie Craig, Jack's sister, Matilda Lucke; Mrs. Craig, Jack's mother, Mrs. Cornelio Santos. The piece is in five acts and thirteen scenes, and met with success. A duel was introduced in the third act between Jack Craig and George Anderson, which proved a strong feature.

Hoboken.—Thomas and Watson, at the head of a specialty company comprising Harris and Walters, Lew Roseland and Millie May, Geo. W. Wood and the Morton Bros., are at Cronheim's Theatre Aug. 13-19. Next week, variety. The past week business was good. Georgie Mozart, in her dancing, and Prof. Ed. Mozart, in his electric work their (first appearance at this house) got a good reception. The Four Emperors of Music—Howard, Russell, Seely and Talbert—leave for London, Eng., Aug. 22. Minnie Bell, of Marvin and Bell, was taken sick 7, and was compelled to close. .....On account of some misunderstanding Wally Eldinger will not go with Jos. Jefferson, but with "Phillip Herne." L. Eddinger has signed with the same company....Manager Parker, who controlled Dominick Murray last season, has discarded theatricals and joined the Pinkerton Detective Forces. He is detailed on one of the Glen Island boats.

Paterson.—The managers of both houses are busy making extensive alterations and improvements. I looked in at the Opera House, Aug. 12, and, although it was Sunday, I saw scene painters, carpenters and upholsterers busily engaged in making repairs and new work. The house will be opened Sept. 3. What the bill will be is unknown at this writing.....At the People's, Fred. A. Thomas, the new manager, is making alterations and improvements, with a foresight which is commendable; conspicuous among the many noticable changes, for the better, are the closing, altogether, of the door leading from the vestibule of the house to the cafe, and the new entrance to the balcony. The Jonahs of the house, i. e., those who formerly stood around the entrance, and whose only employment seemed to be ogling ladies, squirting tobacco juice, and indulging in coarse jokes (?) and remarks, have, I am pleased to know, been notified to find other quarters. The peanut fiend has been squelched, also. Manager Thomas announces as his opening attraction the Leonzo Bros. The house is advertised to open Aug. 18.

Newark.—The first house to open for the season was Jacobs' Grand Opera House Aug. 13. Florence Bindley in "Dot" was the attraction, and it was the opening night of her season. The house was crowded in every part. The play has been reconstructed since last season; the last act, especially, is much improved. The company is composed of Florence J. Bindley, James Horne, J. J. Macready, Otis Turner, Ed. E. Redford, Chas. M. Holly, Harry Wagner, Jeannette Charles, Nora Thorne, Nita Baldwin and the dogs Nero and Zip. Week of 20, "Passion's Slave."....Waldmann's will open next week with a vaudeville company. Tommy Hindley, the leader of Waldmann's orchestra, is expected home from England 18.

Camden.—The property of the Camden Opera House Co. was to have been sold at the Sheriff's office Aug. 11, on the foreclosure of a mortgage, but the sale was postponed for two weeks. In the meantime a meeting of the Board of Directors will be called, and action will be taken to enforce the payment of delinquent subscriptions, which, it is said, amount to about $11,000. It is reported that a Philadelphia capitalist has offered to contribute $25,000 toward the enterprise if $15,000 is raised in Camden. There is also said to be a man ready to rent the building at ten per cent. on the cost of construction.

TENNESSEE.

Memphis.—"Fatinitza" drew good business at Jackson's Mound Park week ending Aug. 4. Bessie Fairbain, who came from St. Louis to take the part of Valadimir, made a very agreeable impression, as also did Fred Dixon as Julian Hardy. Patti Stone, who joined the company in St. Louis, has succeeded in establishing herself a favorite. Castell Bridges will shortly leave for Philadelphia to join Cancross' Minstrels. Fred Dixon and Bessie Fairbain expect soon to leave for the East. Kitty Wilson, who came here with the St. Quinten Co. several years ago, and has since been living in retirement in this city, made her reappearance on the stage in "Fatinitza," and is doing very clever work for the Schneider Co.

Knoxville.—The Bijou is the only house open and is doing a big business.....Hattie Nevele, who has been very sick for the last three weeks, is much improved, and will be able to open Aug. 15, when a benefit will be given her by Stewart & Mitchell, managers, and the people who are now at the Bijou.

MINNESOTA.

St. Paul.—At the People's Theatre, week of Aug. 13, "London Assurance." Business was good week of 6. L. W. Walker is now general manager. Manager Wilson, lately deposed, will, I am informed, file his papers in the District Court soon, asking for an injunction. It is impossible to get at the merits of the controversy further than I have already advised you; but one thing is assured—that the theatre will continue to run and to make money. The following are the names of the new people secured: Loduski Young, Sally Williams, Barton Hill, F. C. Huebner and Charles Wingate. Miss Young will be leading lady; Sally Williams, soubrette; Barton Hill, stage manager; Charles Wingate, walking agent; Mr. Huebner will assume heavy roles.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—When this resort opens 20, with Cleveland's Haverly's Minstrels, there will be a revelation for its old patrons. The internal changes and improvements are extensive.

OLYMPIC THEATRE opens 20. The programme was sent last week.

KOHL & MIDDLETON'S.—Could not give attractions at this writing. Business is fair.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE. — "The Marble Heart" is billed for week of 13. The new company played "London Assurance" in an admirable manner 6-11. Theodore Hamilton and Ogarita Booth, new members of the company, made many friends for themselves and the house. Business is good.

The building is a wooden one, two stories high, 100x50ft. The hall is on the second floor, and is approached by two stairways, each eight feet wide. It will seat about 600 on the main floor, and the gallery about 200. The size of the hall is 60x48ft.; the stage is 48x22ft., with three sets of grooves. There will be a good stock of scenery. It is lighted by gas. There are four dressing rooms. There are two large stairways in the rear, in case of a panic. The prevailing colors are white and gold. The hall is situated on the corner of Third Street and Sixth Avenue, East. Ernest Kugler is the manager.....I see in the last number of THE CLIPPER that the Gorman Bros.' DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

LOUIS DE LESTRY sends us the following account of the finding of the body of James McGraw, of McGraw and Arlington: "HELENA, Mont., Aug. 1.—The body of James McGraw, which has been missing for several days, was found yesterday in the river opposite Fairmount Cemetary. McGraw played an engagement at the Comique a few weeks ago, and after his engagement closed he remained in the city with his wife, Freddie Arlington, waiting for an engagement in the East. Not feeling well he was taken to Wickwire's ranche, opposite the cemetery, to recuperate. While in the delirium he jumped from a window, and it is supposed fell over the steep bluff into the river below. The coroner will hold an inquest this morning. The Comique management have raised one hundred dollars for a suitable burial. Arrangements are being made by the friends of the deceased for the proper disposition of the remains. The funeral service will be held at the Catholic church. McGraw was a member of the Catholic church in life, and was a good man in many respects. He was very popular with the fellow members of his profession, as was evinced by the fact that $100 was contributed by the associates of the Comique to the expenses of the funeral."

DRAMATIC.

J. A. H. H., San Antonio.—Your letter of inquiry as to the early career of Fanny Pritchard has been referred to THE CLIPPER by the dramatic editor of The Cincinnati Enquirer. Such few facts as we can gather from a necessarily hasty search of our records are at your service, the case seeming to warrant imparting fuller knowledge, if we had it. She was a native of England, born a Pritchard, which name she changed in early life on marrying as Mr. Pemberton, from whom, however, she soon separated. Her second husband was that famous rider, Tatnall, from whom, also, for good cause, she procured a divorce. In 1828 she was Mrs. Hartwig, and soon after, we believe, a widow. She next married Hamilton Hosack, whose name she never used in public, being professionally called at that time Mrs. Fanny Pritchard. Her last husband was a Mr. Riley, whom, we believe, she also survived. After an early career in the circus companies of dates prior to 1823, she made her first dramatic appearance at the (old) Park Theatre, this city, March 13, 1823, as Florinda and Little Pickle, scoring success in both roles. She was in the company at the Park that season and the following one. She went back to the Broadway Circus for the Summer of 1824. Later she starred in other cities, and with considerable success. At the Bowery, Aug. 12, 1834, she made her first appearance in New York after an absence of six years, acting Imogene for Mr. Parsons' benefit. On the 26th, for her own benefit, she played "Massaroni, the Brigand." Her engagement ended Sept. 9, that year, with still another benefit, and she was seen as Massaroni and as Little Pickle in "The Irishman's Home." Her last appearance in this city occurred in the Winter of 1836, at the Franklin Theatre, where she played a round of popular characters. Our record of her death places it in 1843, in Texas.

W. C., Omaha.—I. We do not consider that a course of instruction in any one of those schools is absolutely necessary, but hold to our opinion of thirty-five years' standing, that practical work, even at the now despised "bottom of the ladder," is the better preparation. In your case, however, we advise neither course. You are already earning a living, and your prospects are bright, because you are very young and active. Don't think of the stage until you are old enough to appreciate the difficulties you would embrace. 2. That play is done in several versions, all from the French of Sardou. You could not obtain the right to any current form of it.

W. A. G., Eureka Springs.—He was in California in those years, starring.

A. E. J., Springfield.—Chas. A. Hawkins, 118 East Thirteenth Street.

W. G. E., Bath Beach.—1. Address him care of THE CLIPPER. 2. By J. C. S. & Co., $2.60; by A. G. F., $5.20.

GARRICK, Muncie.—1. The Palmer-Boucicault school and that of Franklin H Sargent, in this city, are the chief ones. But please distinctly understand that THE CLIPPER "recommends" neither. 2. From $40 to $75 per week according to his ability.

J. W. J., Granby.—1. You might copyright it for the sake of added security; that is all. 2. We know of no company that make such work a specialty. Consult any good sign painter.

MOHAWK.—The only Indian actress we ever heard of is the lady known on the playbills as Gowongo Mohawk. She has appeared in this city, and on the road with some success, and we have been assured that she is genuinely an Indian. We know of no Indian actor or (in the sense that you undoubtedly mean) "Indian play." Our advice would be to seek other employment unless a promising certainty presents itself in the profession you would follow.

L. D. B., Owensboro.—Shields', McFlinn's, Howe's, Eugene Robinson's, Wallace & Co.'s and others—the list is too long to print entire—and they can all be addressed care of THE CLIPPER, or as per their routes ahead, published weekly in this paper.

W. D. C., Danville.—1. Send brief description of the house. 2. THE CLIPPER is mailed free to each of its correspondents so long as he continues in its employ.

PRIVATE A. L. L., Boston.—See the notice at the head of this column. Address her as there advised. The letter will be advertised gratis, and she will probably send for it without delay.

R. F. M., Binghamton.—See the notice at the head of this department. We cannot break that rule, for obvious reasons.

OMNES.—He can always be addressed in care of THE CLIPPER.

F. B., Philadelphia.—See head of this column, and answers to "B. F. M." and "Omnes."

JESIE DENSBY is notified that her father, who is ill, seeks to know her whereabouts.

F. P. R., Boston.—Selina Dolaro is not related to Hattie or Elina Delaro.

Mrs. J. C., Boston.—We do not believe he is dead. He could hardly pass away without knowledge of the fact reaching us sooner or later. He has probably been dilatory in replying to his correspondents. Try him again.

W. C. L., Oakaloosa.—See the notice at the head of this column. Why not write to Fred Hallen about him? Mr. H can be addressed care of THE CLIPPER.

J. M., Brooklyn.—No book of that kind is published that would be of use to you. Consult a performer in that line of business.

A. B. C., Oil City.—1. Letters in THE CLIPPER Postoffice are advertised only once. 2. That roster has not yet been published. Look for it at a later date.

W. P. H., Norfolk.—We believe you have been misinformed regarding her reported death. See notice at the head of this column.

A READER, Cincinnati.—She never appeared in "The Black Crook."

G. F. B., Albany.—That company closed their tour many weeks ago, and have not since taken the road. Any further information will be imparted by their manager, W. J. Gilmore, of the Central Theatre, Philadelphia.

W. S. G., Hamilton.—1. It is played with keys. 2. Write to George O. Starr, of the Barnum-Bailey Circus, care of THE CLIPPER. He will recommend a firm.

E. M., St. Louis.—The letter is still here.

J. W. K., Berwick.—J. M. Hill manages a cyclorama of that description, at Fourth Avenue and Nineteenth Street, this city. Write to him.

F. J. C., San Antonio.—May Newman, now Mrs. Henry C. Kennedy.

Miss E. C. M.—They are not the same.

A. C. D. AND INQUIRER.—Both your questions involve an expression of personal opinion. We prefer not to give ours. But we will say, to your first query, that no clever agent or manager will book his season through the medium of any "theatrical directory." The actual experience of traveling and observation are far more valuable as aids to routing.

E. I. R., Beloxi.—We know nothing of that company, save that if they attempt to play "A Bunch of Keys" without authority, they lay themselves liable to prosecution.

E. G.—No dictionary of theatrical terms has ever been published.

S. J. E., Philipsburg.—See head of this column.

G. G. J., Boston.—1. See last week's CLIPPER, in telegraphic reports. 2. See Base-ball answers.

J. A. C., Corning.—You had better write direct to Mr. O'Neill, care of THE CLIPPER.

ATHLETIC.

H. C. O., Boston.—L. E. Myers' fastest time for one hundred yards is 10s.

E. P. R., Valparaiso.—George W. Hamilton.

P. B., Newark.—The Demarests lost by refusing to pull the final.

DUNCAN, Hillsboro.—The only records we have will be found in the CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1888.

C. K. Jr., Blairsville.—B forfeited the stakes by not being on hand at the time and place appointed. All side bets on the result are off.

M. M. W., Blairsville.—See answer to C. K. Jr.

O. W. S., Valparaiso.—The name of the party to whom you refer is George W. Hamilton.

J. M., Newark.—See reply to P. B.

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

D., New Orleans.—1. Each club of the National League, or of the American Association, has to play 140 championship games in all. 2. Our championship tables are correct. 3. We do not include the victory of the Philadelphias over the Pittsburgs on May 5, for the reason that the two clubs have agreed to play the game over again.

I. M. D., Crookston.—The bet is off if the Minneapolis Club transfers its franchise before the season closes.

J. F. B., Honesdale.—The New York team are scheduled to play twenty-four more games at the Polo Grounds, including six in August, eight in September and ten in October next.

W., Winona.—A loses. Our rule in such a case is that the winning club must make at least two runs, and that a score of 1 to 0 does not win a two to one bet.

A. R., Watertown.—He is not out. It is a foul hit.

J. M., Boston.—A loses, as the Bostons failed to defeat the Pittsburgs.

G. G. J., Boston.—He is about five feet, eight inches in height.

RING.

E. McK., Winnipeg.—John L. Sullivan was not present at the fight between Kilrain and Smith.

G. F., Winnipeg.—See answer to E. McK.

BILLIARDS.

E. R. C., Socorro.—1. The play mentioned is merely a miss, and no forfeit is incurred. 2. No answers by mail.

SUBSCRIBER, Hartford.—A wins. In the three ball game, a player whose ball jumps the table after scoring continues playing—the ball to be respotted the same as at the commencement of the game.

CARDS.

A. S., Fort Robinson.—He needs to show openers only.

B. F. G., San Francisco.—A is wrong. B has the correct idea.

C. E. C., Elmira.—The player holding the high wins.

P. A. M., Washington.—B is entitled to a run of four. It is not necessary for the cards to be played as A claims.

E. R. R.—It is generally so understood, unless a special agreement otherwise has mutually been made.

L. W., Davenport.—You need to make a more explicit statement. We utterly dislike conjuring up particulars of a dispute, the elements of which, as yet, we know nothing.

THE ACE, Worcester.—No. He could not, according to your statement.

CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN, Hot Springs.—A was right. B must show his hand.

AQUATIC.

J. N. S., Syracuse.—1, 2. No announcement yet made. Watch CLIPPER columns for notice. 3. They have always had amateur races there. 4. He would be a professional.

IKE, Thoroid.—A deposit of $100 would be sufficient to attest the sincerity of the challenger. No specified amount.

TURF.

S. E. S., Albia.—Maud S.'s fastest trotting time for one mile is 2:08¾, which is the best record for that style of going.

J. G.—1. See page 46 of CLIPPER ANNUAL, forwarded to your address. 2. We have no record of the race. 3. Still on deck.

MISCELLANEOUS.

READER, Canal Street.—We have no knowledge of such an instrument. Try an advertisement.

OLD READER, Rochester.—1. As an organization, they can secure a copyright or trade mark. 2. They could prosecute, of course. 3. No State law differs from that of the United States.

F. H., Pittston.—We must plead ignorance. The query is entirely too technical. Perhaps some dealer in those dyes can help you out.

R. B., Greenfield.—It would cost $2 for each insertion.

W. V. H., Hornellsville.—He must be here three years before he can obtain his first (or declaration of intention) papers; then, after two years more, his full citizen's papers.

CONSTANT READER, Washington.—B won. A was wrong in his claim. B needed only to show the amount necessary to cover A's wager in order to win.

J. D. P.—The side on which the person or action to be commemorated is represented. It is generally the side which bears the date. If you will tell us the denomination, we can more accurately give you the desired information.

CHESS.

To Correspondents.

B. A. A., Brooklyn.—Thank you for noting the discovery, which is correct; come again.

CAPT. HUNTINGTON.—After Black 1..K B × K 2d P, there is no mate in Prob. 1,645.

"SOCIAL CRANKS."—Thanks for solutions; your problem has the 2d solution we suggested: 1..Q to B 4 +, K to B 4; 2..Q Kt +, K × B!; 3..R to Q 7 +; 4..Q, or Kt, mates ac'y.

J. C. BIRD.—Thank you heartily for letter and contributions. There must be something wrong with the end game; if, in answer to your move, K × R, it seems impossible for White to win. Please re-examine.

"NOBODY," Fort Leavenworth.—Your enthusiastic and persevering work is very welcome.

ADDENDUM to Enigma 1,635, "the multitudinous," by "Nobody." White to mate in six moves, moving only King and R. Stipulation No. IX is to mate in nine moves, with Q B P; Mr. "N." finds a solution in eight, observing: "The niner I never found, eight is good enough for me in this hot weather. There may be much more in this Enigma, but this is enough for a few months' work." In the light of all the interest, discoveries, and labor expended upon it, past and prospective, together with the fact that a P was misplaced in the original description, we will repeat the position as our problem next week.

CHESS IN ST. LOUIS.—We feel just like leading off with —Hurrah for St. Louis! And the more, as we had some rather despondent reports of a sort of ebb tide in chess in that city. But every ebb is followed by its corresponding flood; and, in this case, the abounding flood obliterates all trace of the ebb. Just read Bro. Bird on the situation: "KIND FRIEND: Notwithstanding the excessive heat, chess is having a genuine boom here in St. L. At Koerper's, where the Southern players meet, we have had such a reunion in the past week as was never seen there before. Just think of men of Ranbuski's and my own time of life being found always at the front! I never went to supper at all last week, staid generally until eleven o'clock. * * * Reed's the boss! He is a book agent, and travels in the Centre. When here, he lives on the chess board, and is a bright player; moves quickly, brings out his Queen at once, and is found slashing about, with his Pawns in front all the time. You will be pleased to hear that our Chess, Checker and Whist Club has taken on a new lease of life. Thanks to the liberality, as well as the good judgment of the present management, you can rest assured that the club will prosper and be self sustaining. Heretofore many players have kept aloof on account of the expense. A material reduction has been made, and it will now be the fault of the votaries of chess in St. Louis if they are not all numbered in the fold. Besides this, and as a douceur, the president of the club, Mr. Rowse, has decided to give $100 in prizes to be distributed to the winners in a monster handicap tournament to come off in September next. Yours fraternally, J. C. BIRD."

SIXTH AM. CH. CONGRESS.—By the August International we have much interesting information, of which we can only give two or three items. The committee is now a permanently established institution, officered as follow: President, J. Spencer Turner; first, second and third vice do., respectively, Dr. O. F. Jentz, F. Perrin and Thos. Frere; treasurer, F. Rose; secretary, C. Schubert. The minimum value of the first prize in the grand International Tournament is as already announced $1,000, and an extra remuneration of $250 is also guaranteed to the winner of the tournament, it in consequence of a challenge he should play a champion match to which a prize of a trophy of the minimum value of $250 will be attached. There will be at least seven prizes in the grand tournament; and, in view of a probable increase of subscriptions, the committee is desirous to announce a larger minimum value of prizes than at present can be contemplated, as well as definitely the percentage of the surplus which will be added to the prizes. It is also desired to add a Minor and Problem Tourney to the programme; but these features will depend upon increased subscriptions. "In the name of the brotherhood that exists among intelligent devotees of our noble and universal pastime, the committee therefore appeal to generous amateurs in America, and other countries, to aid them by furthur contributions in their efforts of maintaining creditably the prestige of the royal game." The pledged subscriptions are now asked for; remittances to be made to F. Rose, P. O. Box 3,076, New York City. The secretary's address is C. Schubert, 12 First Street, N. Y. City.

(a) An important variation from our game 1,644, and its supplement, which see. The move there is 7..K B to K 2. This is the opening of Gossip's (Manual) Game Third, pp. 135-6. Mr. G. gives 7..K B to K 2, 7..P to Q 4 best; 8..K B to Q 3, even; observing, with a var., that 7..P to K B 4 has been suggested for White. To this, Mr. Lipschuetz (Appendix) adds: "7..K B to K 2 has been justly discarded as less aggressive than 7..Q to her 2; B to K 5; or else Kt to Q B 2"—our text move.

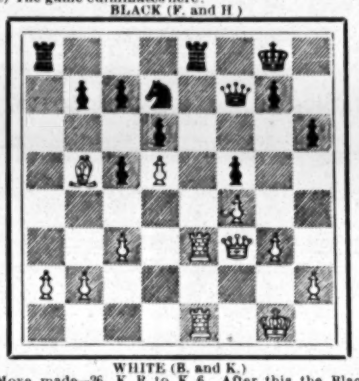
(c) The game culminates here:

BLACK (F. and H.)



WHITE (B. and K.)

Move made—26..K R to K 6. After this the Blacks seem, somehow, to drift to the bad; while the White allies, without any effort at dash or brilliance, steadily push towards the goal in view.

(d) Insures their defeat; for, after carrying R home, it does not appear that they dare to × any of White's Pawns. The last ten moves are quite unnecessary.

The Philadelphia Caledonians.

About two thousand persons attended the annual picnic and games of the Philadelphia Caledonian Club, held at Athletic Park, Gloucester, N. J., on Monday, Aug. 6. The change of locale from the old meeting ground in the Quaker City was necessitated by the fact that the high license law had deprived the proprietor of the latter place of the privilege of supplying anything in the way of beverages stronger than soda water, which is not exactly to the taste of the patrons of these sports. The events resulted as follow:

Throwing light hammer, 12lb—John A. McDougal, 121ft. 8in., first; S. D. McLean, 107ft. 6in., second; William Robertson, 100ft. 8in., third.

MAN BEATS HORSE.—Arthur Norris, the English runner, ran twenty miles against the Arabian blood horse Karrabis, ridden by Alex. Trentepool, 140lb, for a prize of 300 roubles, at the Christowski Gardens, near St. Petersburg, Russia, on July 15. It was stipulated that the horse should trot the whole of the distance, being allowed to break twenty-one times, but to be pulled up the moment it broke, or if it galloped over twenty strides it was to be disqualified. The track was three hundred and six yards in circumference. Norris got off the quickest, and at the end of the first lap he was two yards ahead. The horse continued to gain, and on the twenty-second circuit lapped Norris. The latter recovered the lead on the seventy-fifth lap, and on the ninety-second he lapped the horse, which was very tired. Norris gained rapidly in the last three laps, finally winning by more than that distance, finishing at a sprint pace in 1h. 58m. 16s. The track was not more than two feet and a half in width, and, of course, toward the end was very much cut up.

HART WINS.—A seventy-five hour go as you please race closed at the Casino, Troy, N. Y., Aug. 11, with the following score: Frank Hart, 292 miles 6 laps; George Cartwright, 289.1; F. Elson, 284.8; P. N. Campana, 281.3; Barney Burns, 268. Hart's share of the proceeds, fifty per cent., reached about $700.

T. P. CONNEFF, H. M. Banks Jr. and their manager, G. M. L. Sachs, arrived at this port on board the steamer Umbria on Aug. 12, and were welcomed home by a large party of clubmates, who congratulated them on the success met with abroad.

Acton vs. Faulkner.

Our correspondent sends the following details of the match between Jos. Acton and Jimmy Faulkner, for $2,500, which took place at the Olympic Club rooms, San Francisco, Cal., on Tuesday evening, July 31. The match was for members of the club only, about 1,250 being present. Faulkner stripped at 131lb, and Acton at 152lb. This handicap of twenty-one pounds was too much for Faulkner to overcome. He was in the best of condition, wrestled gamely, and deserves a great deal of praise for winning the one fall that he did. Acton appeared fat and flabby, but this extra weight undoubtedly won the match for him. This was Acton's first appearance before a Pacific Coast audience. He is possessed of great strength, but is not as active as Faulkner. The first fall was won by Acton in twenty minutes. From the call of time he assumed the offensive, and continued it throughout the match. It was very plain to see that Faulkner was overmatched. After wrestling twenty-three minutes, Faulkner, by a quick turn, succeeded in rolling Acton squarely over on both shoulders, and winning the second fall. It took Acton just four minutes to secure a half Nelson on Faulkner, and win the final fall and match. J. B. Tibbatts, of the Olympic Club, acted as referee. Acton was seconded by Arthur Chambers, and Faulkner by W. H. Quinn.

Regatta in Illinois.

The Chicago Navy held their second annual regatta on Lake Calumet, at Pullman, Ill., on Aug. 11, to a large attendance. The day was cool and favorable for outdoor sport, but the wind was, as is frequently the case, in the wrong quarter for a smooth course. In the first race the junior fours, the Pullman crew, No. 2, swamped about 150 yards from the finish, when they had a winning lead. The best contested event was the junior single sculls, which was taken by E. C. Brown of the Farraguts, who had a lead of only a quarter boat length over W. S. McDowell of the Iroquois. The senior fours created considerable interest, and, had the Pullmans judged their course better, it might have resulted in their favor. In the senior singles Corbett of the Farraguts gave McDowell of the Iroquois fifteen seconds start, and won with ease. The course was one and a half miles, with a turn, except the canoe races, which were one mile, straightaway. No official time was taken of the canoe events. Return:

Junior four oared shells—Pullman Athletic Club Crew No. 1, Wm. Fleeman (bow), L. Haas, A. Banderub, Wm. Henderson (stroke), defeated Crew No. 2, same club, who swamped.

Racing for Cups.

Four schooners and thirteen sloops contended for the annually raced for Goelet Cups off Newport, R. I., on Aug. 10. The weather was not very favorable, as the wind was unsteady and light and the boats were therefore not seen at their best, nor was the race a fair test of the respective quality of the competitors. It proved a Burgess day, however, as the winners in each class was designed by the Boston artist. The Volunteer was the first boat to cross the imaginary line at the start, followed by the Mayflower, Miranda, Sea Fox and Sachem in this order. At the outer turn, however, the latter led by over four minutes, while the Volunteer was second, the Sea Fox third, and the Puritan fourth. After leaving the Hen and Chickens the Volunteer recovered her advantage, and was not again headed, the race resulting as shown in the following table:

An Easy Win.

A match between four oared crews representing the Bradford and Riverside Boat Clubs, the latter being the champions of the New England A. R. A., was decided on the three mile course on the Charles River at Boston, Mass., Aug. 11. The weather was pleasant, barring a brisk wind, which roughened the water considerably, and the race was witnessed by about two thousand people. The majority pinned their faith to the Riversides, but the result proved that their confidence had been misplaced, for the Bradfords went off in advance and throughout the contest were not approached, eventually pulling easily over the finish line fully fifteen lengths ahead. Time, 21m. The opposing crews were made up thus: Riverside—William Kivlin (bow), William Balmer, Thomas Riley, Eugene Sullivan (stroke). Bradford—John Cumming (stroke), J. D. Ryan, D. H. McPhee, Joseph Skelton (bow).

CHARLES SCHULE of Beaver Falls and Charles Schultz of Pittsburg, Pa., were opponents in a scullers' race, two miles, for fifty dollars, at the former place, on Aug. 11. Schule finished almost five lengths ahead, the contest having been tame enough to greatly disappoint close upon two thousand persons, who were led to anticipate an exciting struggle.

A FOUR OARED RACE took place over the old college course, three miles, on Lake Quinsigamond, Mass., on Aug. 2, the opposing crews representing the Worcester Rowing Association and the Woodcocks. Working boats were used, and the former won all the way, finishing forty-five seconds ahead, in 21m. 5s. John Cumming is the captain of the Worcesters. Jimmy Ten Eyck was the referee.

THE swimming championship at one mile, professional, was decided at the Welsh Harp, London, Eng., July 23. A half dozen started, and the winner turned up in J. Finney, whose time was 30m. 11⅛s.; S. Sergeant second, 32m. 42⅛s.; J. Dutton third, 33m. 18¼s.; E. J. Kirk fourth, 37m. 19s.

Fast Railroad Time.

A cablegram from Edinburgh, Scotland, dated Aug. 6, gives the following account of a remarkably fast trip by rail: "The Flying Scotchman has been beaten by the West Coast Flyer. When the London and Northwestern, or West Coast Express, ran into Edinburgh station at eight minutes to six this evening it broke all previous records of high railroad speed, not only for England but the world. This was the first day of the great four hundred mile race between the two biggest English companies and the faster train of the two traversed the greater part of that distance at a speed of a mile a minute. The engine which made this remarkable run had a single pair of driving wheels, seven feet six inches in diameter, and weighed twenty-seven tons. It burned twenty-four pounds of coal per mile during the run. The tender, loaded, weighed twenty-five tons and behind it were four coaches filled with passengers, making a weight of twenty tons each. That part of the road lying between Tring and Bletchley was covered at the rate of 72 miles an hour. The run from London to Crewe, a distance of 158 miles, was made in 2h. 58m., without a halt. Engines were changed three times. The entire distance was 400 miles, and actual time, excluding stops, seven hours and twenty-five minutes, an average of 53.53-89 miles per hour. This has never been approached before for so long a run.

[Specially Reported for The New York Clipper.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The past few weeks will be memorable ones in the history of the New York Club. The scenes and incidents were of the most stirring nature, and were of such a state as are not often witnessed on a ball field. The high state of excitement, the mental anxiety, the constant apprehension, and finally the successful work of the New York team in that short space of time is something not soon to be forgotten by the local public. The New Yorks were successful, and have strengthened their hold on first place in the race for the pennant, but they had to fight hard to do so. Two of the Western teams have come and gone, and their visit made a deep impression on the minds of the local admirers of the national game. The other two Western teams—Chicago and Detroit—will be here this week. Yet, if the latter two are not any more successful against the New Yorks than Indianapolis and Pittsburg were, then there is little to be apprehended. The New Yorks took five of the six games recently played with Indianapolis and Pittsburg, which is not so bad, considering the fine record these teams made against the Detroits and Chicagos, prior to their coming East. It must be admitted that the New Yorks had no easy task in scoring their victories over those teams, but they managed to get there, and that is all that is necessary to become a champion team. Probably the local public never witnessed six better played or more exciting contests than those during the past week between the New Yorks and their Western rivals. It is doubtful if Chicago and Detroit will play as well. They certainly will do no better work than those teams did.

The local enthusiasts who visited the Polo Grounds Aug. 11 were anxious to see the New Yorks make it three straight from the Pittsburgs, and thus close the most successful two weeks in the history of the team's work. The Pittsburgs played remarkably well, but the New Yorks did better, even though they had a hard fight to take two of the three games played. If Chicago and Detroit play as well as Indianapolis and Pittsburg did then the public will be treated to another fine series of games, and it is safe to say that immense crowds will witness the contests to be played this week. Could the Pittsburgs hit the ball a little harder, or bunch their hits more frequently than they do, there is no disputing the fact that they would be one of the leading teams of the profession. Their fielding is of the highest order, while in base running they showed a marked improvement over any previous visit to this city. The Hoosier team also did well, and made the New Yorks present their best foot forward to win, which the latter did to the entire satisfaction of their friends. It was the Indianapolis team who put the New Yorks on their mettle, and when the Pittsburgs came here they were in such a condition to give the Pittsburg lads a warm reception.

In speaking about the Indianapolis team it was noticed that the players, with probably the exception of Daily, did not indulge in any "dirty" ball playing, or at least not to any extent. Several times Daily purposely prevented New York players from reaching the home plate. Yet Umpire Kelly took no notice of the hinderance. Glasscock must have left his "spiking" shoes at home, as the three games were played without his inflicting any injuries to the local players. Some very unsavory reports came from the West in advance of the Hoosiers as to their conduct while playing out there, which was characterized as being of the ruffian order, but, with the one exception, none of it was indulged in while playing in this city.

It is said that Manager Spence and Tommy Esterbrook are on the "outs." It all came about a play that the latter made, which, in the judgment of many persons, was the proper one, and had Tommy received the just reward for his efforts there would have been no fault found with him. As it was, Welch, who Tommy tried to catch at the home plate, was declared safe. Then fault was found with Esterbrook for not trying to complete another play, which was to have thrown the ball to Glasscock for the purpose of putting out Ward, who was some distance off second base. Had he done so and not completed the play, then fault would have been found with him for allowing Welch to get home. After losing the game some one had to be sacrificed, and Esterbrook seemed to be the best man to fall under the ban of the astute manager. The consequences are that Esterbrook is laid off without pay until such time as Manager Spence sees fit. Does Manager Spence think such work will produce good results to his team? If he does, he will sooner or later find out his mistake. If Esterbrook is no good let him go altogether, and look for one to fill the position. Don't indulge in such pranks as has been witnessed in your managerial experience since you took charge of the Hoosier team.

Of the playing of the two visiting teams in this city during the past week that of the Pittsburg was decidedly of the higher order. Some of the stops made by the infielders were phenomenal, while the running catches by the outfielders, in which apparent safe, long hits were prevented, were simply wonderful. With all this brilliant work by the visitors the New Yorks were not in the background. Keefe, Welch and Ewing were a model for which other teams would do well to copy from. Even Brown, Titcomb and Murphy did remarkably well, considering the little regular practice they have had of late. Big Roger Connor proved himself a giant when occasion offered itself. His one handed catch of a line ball while on the run, as the ball was passing over his head, and then completing a double play unassisted, was enough to make any team lose heart. The remainder of the players filled their positions in an able manner, and fully demonstrated the fact that New York has a most wonderful ball team. The great majority of the men are not so large, or can they physically be called giants, but they managed to cover all the territory necessary to prevent safe hits from being made when they were most needed to send in runs to give the opposing teams a victory.

Fred Dunlap is called the king of second basemen, and there is no denying the fact that he is a great player; but the time is not far distant when one can witness a player of the New York team who will command the king to take a back seat, and he will obey him with astonishing alacrity. Danny Richardson has neither had the year nor practice in that position that Dunlap has, yet it would puzzle the most experienced eye to tell which of the two is the better player. I rather think Danny would have the preference were both free to sign.

CHARLES W. GANZEL, CATCHER OF THE DETROITS,

Whose portrait is given in this issue of THE CLIPPER, first played ball in the city of Minneapolis. In 1884 he was engaged as first baseman and change catcher for the Minneapolis team, which at that time was a member of the Northwestern League. While there he caught for Caruthers, now of the Brooklyns, in many of the championship games. In 1885 Ganzel signed with the Philadelphia Club, that being his first year as a National League player. Manager Harry Wright engaged him as a catcher, and he remained with the Philadelphias throughout that season and part of 1886. It was in the latter year that the Detroit Club purchased his release. Ganzel was not long with the Detroits before he showed a marked improvement in his work. He is now considered one of the best catchers in the National League, being a fine thrower, having a wonderful reach, and being able to stand any amount of punishment. Owing to an injury to Bennett during the season of 1886, which necessitated his retiring, Ganzel filled the position of catcher to the entire satisfaction of the management. Last season he caught in nearly one half of the championship games his club played, and to his efforts, as much as any other man, is due the high standing the team was able to take in 1887. This season Ganzel has proved himself a valuable all round player. Besides his excellent work behind the bat he has been filling the position of second baseman, during Hardie Richardson's absence, in a very creditable manner.

The New Yorks are to have another new uniform. This time it will be cream white, tight fitting knit goods, with maroon belt and stockings, and maroon striped caps. The name "New York," in maroon letters, will adorn the breast of the shirt. The date on which the team will appear in its new uniform has not as yet been stated. There is no doubt but that the new suits will be more attractive than the present ones, and at the same time give more satisfaction to everybody than do the present funeral looking uniforms the men wear. They will certainly be more appropriate to the occasion as the New Yorks are in the lead.

The Brooklyns have gone on their second Western trip, and their work will be eagerly watched by their friends at home. A great deal depends upon the showing the team makes on this trip as to whether or not it will hold first place when it returns home. The team was badly handicapped when it left home by the continued absence of Dave Orr, the big, heavy batting first baseman. Not that Dave Foutz is not playing first base in a very creditable manner during Orr's absence but Foutz is needed in the box to alternate with Caruthers, or with Orr on first base Foutz can fill the bill at right field in a way that will give more strength to the team than it now possesses. Then Orr is wanted to help strengthen the team in batting, this being a very important factor toward the success of any team. However, the team has already been made stronger by the addition of Tom Burns, late of the Baltimores, one of the heaviest batters in the profession. The signing of Burns, by President Byrne, was a complete surprise to everybody outside the interested parties. The club now presents a fine array of batters in Pinkney, O'Brien, Orr, Burns, Caruthers, Foutz and Smith, with occasional hits or good sacrifice batting from Burdock and Bushong. There is a good every day team for any club to be proud of.

The purchasing of Burns' release from Baltimore was a very wise move on the part of the Brooklyn magnates and is in keeping with some of their other great deals. As a general player Burns is ranked with the best. A year or two ago his playing attracted the attention of the New York Club and an effort was made to get him for its team. There was quite a race for Burns' services between New York and Baltimore, but the latter got him. Had Burns joined the New Yorks he would have been placed on third base, and he would have greatly strengthened what proved to be a weak spot on that team, until Whitney was obtained.

With Dave Orr in his position on first base, and either Foutz or Caruthers in right field and Burns at centre, with the other men in their regular positions, the Brooklyns can yet make a good bid for first place. The nine is in second place and by careful team work it can soon be in the lead again. Their gallant up hill fight in Cincinnati, Aug. 11, is good evidence that the team can do great work when it settles down to business. Let it keep up its fine work during the rest of its trip and good results are bound to accrue. Once in the lead again, and the men all in playing trim, it is safe to say they will make a grand fight to maintain their position throughout the season.

Just what the result will be on the reduction of the admission tariff from 50 cents to 25 cents, can only be seen when the team returns home. However, it can safely be predicted that the attendance will be more than double what it has been in the past. The Brooklyn people have heretofore very liberally supported the poor teams, therefore they will appreciate the fact that they now have a winning one. The Brooklyns will be home again Aug. 25, when they will begin their last Eastern series with the Western teams. On that occasion the Brooklyns will have the Kansas Citys as opponents. A good game is expected and a large crowd should give the Brooklyns a welcome home. Let the public now show their appreciation for what the club has done toward getting a champion team together to represent that city on the green diamond.

Fred Goldsmith, the ex-Chicago pitcher recently appointed as a substitute umpire on the American Association staff, made his first appearance in Brooklyn Aug. 7, and proved himself to be fully capable of filling the position with the ablest officials in the business. He is very quick in all his movements for so large a man. Moreover, he is impartial in all his decisions, and has a firmness about him that commands respect from the players. During the progress of the game Goldsmith took up his position back of the pitcher's box, which seems to interfere somewhat with his hearing sharp foul tips, although his decisions on the bases, as well as on balls and strikes, were seldom questioned on that occasion. On the whole, he seems to be a very able and competent man, and should have no trouble in obtaining a regular position on the staff of one of the leading associations.

The Louisvilles followed the St. Louis Browns in their series with the Brooklyns in the latter city, yet what a marked contrast there was in the style of the playing of the two teams. There was none of that boisterous kicking on the part of the Louisvilles that was witnessed when the Browns played in Brooklyn. The Browns have a certain dash about their work which commands the attention of the public, and makes them one of the leading attractions in baseball circles. They should, however, take care not to injure their good work by anything that is not legitimately in the line of the game. All unnecessary kicking on the ball field should be checked, and no one can avert the evil quicker than the club officials themselves. Let the players, who are fined for such work, pay the penalty themselves, and that would end it.

CINCINNATI CHAT.

[Special Correspondence of The New York Clipper.]

CINCINNATI, Aug. 12.—It isn't often that a club will crowd four extraordinary games into one week and not lose one of them; but that is what the Reds have done within seven days. Enthusiasts here are being educated to expect exciting struggles, and they are certainly seeing some of the most gamely contested battles ever fought on the diamond. After that twelve inning draw on Aug. 4, in which Bakely pitched, he went right in again on the following day and for fifteen innings the Reds played before the winning run came over the plate. Bakely's feat has not been duplicated this year, and it is doubtful whether any pitcher was ever compelled to stand the strain of twenty-seven innings in two consecutive games on successive days. Viau pitched in the draw game and Mullane in the victory. Baldwin was the man responsible for both lengthy fights. He made the errors that enabled them to tie the score. On Aug. 7 occurred the third contest, and then the Baltimore Club was beaten. The visitors from the Monumental City ought to have won in the eleventh inning, but Walter Goldsby, who had made a clean triple to left, cut second base "dead" as he passed by on the line, and as Umpire Gaffney's eyes were upon him when the claim was made he called him out. It was a lucky oversight for the Reds, but a rough one for the plucky visitors, who had not yielded an inch all through the game. In the inning before that, however—the tenth—there had occurred a play that made twenty-five hundred people in the stands heart sick. With one out Fennelly had made a hit. Then Tebeau sent a fly to Griffin. Viau, who was pitching, also got in one of his semi occasional safe drives, and ran to second. He played pretty far off the base, and the coacher's warning was sent out: "You needn't take such a long lead as that Lee." Before he could get back Cunningham turned and Viau was tripped a foot from the base. Nicol, at the bat, threw down the stick with disgust. He wanted to win that game as he has done in several of the extra inning contests the Reds have engaged in. The two teams went ahead, the Reds getting men on bases in every inning until the fourteenth, when Reilly fell against the ball with his cart shaft bat, and drove it on a line clear to the centre field fence. It was quickly fielded, but when Burns turned to throw to Cantz, Reilly had stepped upon the marble with the home run that gave Cincinnati the victory. The fourth and last battle of the extraordinary series occurred on Aug. 10, and singularly enough it required ten innings to settle it. The Brooklyns were the victims. That day they had surprised Cincinnatians and the whole baseball world by taking Tom Burns into camp. The deal with Baltimore has been hanging fire for some weeks, so Manager McGunnigle declared, and it was completed here. Burns did not go into Louisville with the Monumental City boys, but signed a Brooklyn contract at the Grand Hotel as soon as Manager McGunnigle arrived. Paul Radford was left behind at home and Burns was placed instead in centre. He played remarkably well. His hit in the first inning gave Brooklyn the only two runs they scored. Three hits of the seven belonged to him and two of the five put outs with which he was credited were magnificent running catches. Burns was rather quiet on the coaching lines, but when he feels more at home he will let out a few whoops that will put ginger in the team. He may not be any better fielder than little Paul, but he is a better batter. To instance what an exciting game this was: There was only one man out in the eighth when Pinkney lifted a fly clear beyond O'Connor in left, and when the ball was fielded in Pinkney was on third. O'Brien sent up a foul fly for Carpenter and Caruthers a high fly that fell to McPhee. The crowd, that had given up, breathed easier. Then, in the ninth, Keenan, who had reached second on his hit and a sacrifice, was caught at the plate on Bob Clark's assist from right after Carpenter had hit that way. Four hits in succession and two wild throws after two men were out in the tenth, gave the Reds their fourth victory in twelve games already played with Brooklyn. It was Nicol's hit that sent in the run that broke the tie. Brooklyn sprung the Burdock deal here, it may be mentioned, as a coincidence. Joe Sommer was ordered by telegraph to take Burns' place in the Baltimore team.

While this talk of deals is on it is meet and proper to say that before long Serad will don the uniform of a Syracuse Star. No trade will be made for Syracuse means to hold on to Con Murphy and all other players whom Cincinnati might like to have. They will buy Serad's release outright. It was in the International Association that Serad made his reputation when he pitched for a champion team. He has been with Cincinnati two seasons but has never been called upon to do much work. It verily seemed that the Reds put all their loose fielding together the afternoon they back up Serad He has been visiting in Chester, Pa., but when Syracuse made the bid he was at once called here by wire. After Jack Farrell had been hurt the other day, the Baltimores, in the absence of Greenwood, put Burns at second and secured G. W. Bradley to play short for a game. The chances are that the "old man" will go back to Easton to take charge of that Central League team. It was in that town that Bradley, in 1874, first played professionally. He was originally a third baseman, and he tried pitching there and made a success of it.

Cincinnati will pay no attention to the request of Cleveland to waive claims to all her players. If Bakely, O'Brien and Snyder's releases were on the market perhaps Cincinnati might put in a bid. The threat of Cleveland is not regarded seriously, for if that club desires to continue the half dollar tariff there is no association law to prevent them from doing so. Cleveland is certainly playing fifty cent ball if any club in the association is dealing in that staple article. The quarter rate will go into effect Aug 25. The game that day and the following one are "transfers" from Baltimore. The Reds tried Mullane again before Baltimore Aug. 9 and were overwhelmed. It was ever thus!

New Orleans has signed Al. Hungler. Ned Bligh, who took "French leave" from the Crescent City, is here. He practices with the Reds every day, but has not yet been called upon to go in behind the bat. Keenan's hands are all right again, and a few days' rest has restored him to good shape. He is hitting the ball a great deal harder than Baldwin, and that is why he is used so often. Tony Hellman was here last week on a vacation from Columbus.

OUR BOSTON BUDGET.

How the New Second Baseman, Higgins, Is Liked So Far.

[Special Correspondence of The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Boston made no mistake when it signed W. H. Higgins to play second base. He has filled the bill, and with him on second, the infield will play with more confidence than it has since Burdock left us. All things considered, he is a better man today than Burdock. He can cover more ground, is quicker and better in handling thrown balls. He is a fair batsman and a good base runner. In the first Indianapolis game, on Thursday last, he accepted no fewer than twelve chances and participated in four double plays, making one unassisted. In the second game he made three pretty hits, his batting being a feature of the work of the team.

In securing Mike Hines to catch, the club made a woful mistake. A more wretched opening than he made on Saturday is rarely seen. The Indianapolis players stole bases with impunity on him, no fewer than eight being made during the picnic. With him behind the bat the National League clubs would want nothing better. The Herald man says that it would be unfair to criticise Hines on the work of one game, but it would be a pretty blind man who couldn't size him up in the first inning when five bases were stolen off him. The only time that no bases were stolen was when the batsmen went out in one, two, three order. Hines is a faithful, plucky worker, but he is no man for a National League club. Why Tate can play all around him, and is decidedly a better batsman. O'Rourke is surely a better catcher and thrower. The latter ought to find no trouble in getting an engagement. He hasn't had enough work to do in Boston, and this had some effect on him.

Manager Morrill, too, used very bad judgment in putting Hines in to catch Conway on Saturday. It was unfair to the spectators; it was unfair to Conway. It was perfectly evident to everybody, save The Herald man, that Conway didn't have the least confidence in his catcher and at once recognized the fact that if he wanted to win the game he would have to pitch it. Then it was a Saturday, when the crowds were largest and a victory most desirable. The idea of putting in an untried "battery" on such a day. Tate should have been put behind Conway, and Kelly was perfectly willing to go in. Talking about pluck in going behind the bat, few excel Kelly. He has been going right in every day with a finger that would have laid up some catchers for weeks, and he is catching in great style and throwing and batting well at that. He will catch in every game this week.

There is no chance to grumble about the work of the Boston team with the club an record of no defeat last week, the first time this has occurred this season. Pittsburg and Indianapolis came here expecting the easiest kind of a victory over Boston, but they evidently reckoned without their host, for neither succeeded in getting a game. The batting of the boys has been very strong, no fewer than thirty-one hits having been made in the last two Indianapolis games. Pittsburg is greatly strengthened by the accession of Beckley. He fills the bill for the first time since the demise of the lamented McKinnon and is Al's superior as a base runner and in coaching he can outdo Miller in the matter of noise. In his first thirty-five games he had a batting average of .353, which was better than that of any National League player, and no first baseman approached his percentage in fielding, .986. I have been thinking what a hidden treasure was concealed in him when he was with the St. Louis Whites. It was his work that saved the eleven inning game from being a defeat, by making a hit sending in two runs. Then he made a double in the eleventh inning, and got to third with one out, when he was disposed of at the plate by a great play of Morrill off Dalrymple's grounder.

Manager Spence received his sixth consecutive defeat on the present Eastern trip on Saturday, Aug. 11. He has had hard luck in having Denny disabled, but the team is now all right and ought to play first class ball. Harry believes in using his pitchers in rotation, and that is why we had no chance here to see Burdick. I envy that club the possession of such a trio of catchers as Myers, Daily and Buckley. Spence is elated over Daily's showing as a first baseman.

The New England League is dragging along. A meeting was held Aug. 10 at Portsmouth and the club of that place was disposed of to a new management. Portsmouth is drawing the smallest of crowds, and is sure to be a failure with any kind of management. Lowell has a fair lead in the race, and is about five games ahead of Manchester and Worcester, who are neck and neck. Manchester has been greatly strengthened and wants the championship. Ferson is pitching the best ball in the New England League, and I am astonished that Anson has not captured him. There is also splendid material in Burns and Sullivan of Lowell. These men would do well in any league, and Baltimore would have secured in either of them a man far superior to Walker. Worcester has been strengthened by the accession of Shaw, a pitcher recently of the Baltimores. Shaw was decidedly a better man than Walker.

Manager Harry Putnam, late of the Salems, is to go to Easton, Pa., and take with him Trask, Spill, Brigham, Burke, Knowlton, Turner and Earle as soon as a deposit arrives for two weeks' salary. These men ought to make a great record for that club, as they are excellent players.

The Indianapolis players appeared in new uniforms of gray with dark blue caps, belts and stockings in Saturday's game. They looked finely.

Conway has pitched in three of the five games Boston has won since their return home.

McGeachy was presented with a gold headed cane on Saturday—the gift of Clinton friends.

Worcester has released Pitcher Demaris.

The batting of Brown and Hornung has been terrific. The latter has an average of .564 and the former of .340 in the thirteen games played by the Bostons since their return home. Brown has done superbly since he was played regularly on the nine. Nash has been doing superb work at the bat and in the field. In one of last week's games he assisted eight times without an error. Miller struck to him every one of the four times he came to the bat.

The Pittsburgs will play five games in the final series in this city.

Ewing has stolen fewer bases than Seery, but his average is better, as he has played in a smaller number of games.

For the present at least John Morrill will continue to manage the Boston Club. Despite all the talk about the matter the directors have not thought of making a change. With another good catcher Boston will do well enough.

PHILADELPHIA POINTS.

What was Developed at the American Association's Special Meeting.

[Special Correspondence of The New York Clipper.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—What was expected to be the event of the past week was the American Association's special meeting, held Aug. 7—too late for me to chronicle in THE CLIPPER what was done. Everybody had it pat that there would be a cat and parrot time, with Byrne and Von der Ahe as the principals. Instead of raising merry war, the delegates had as pleasant a time as possible. Byrne explained his position, Von der Ahe had done all his talking in the week before the meeting, and the only action taken by the body was to pass a mild resolution of censure. Bob Ferguson, too, was to have been torn out and terrible things were to be done to him if all that was promised before the meeting had been done in it. All the guns had been fired in the air beforehand, and there was none loaded for Bob when his turn came, so he was declared to be honest and straightforward. The only really important work done was the general reduction of the tariff, which is to go into effect Aug. 25. We had it here on both grounds for some time, and the treasurers of the two clubs can best attest how eminently satisfactory was the return to the old prices in this town. The managers of the visiting clubs too saw it, and hence it took very little argument to convince those who were already more than half convinced. With the Cleveland Club's protest and bluff we have nothing to do in this city, and there is little faith placed in the threat of the owners of that club to sell out.

The Athletics have not maintained their lead over Cincinnati so well as I expected, as they split on the St. Louis team. The latter knocked them out of one contest. It was the opening game of the series in that city, and Sharsig's boys had the guage of Hudson's pitching and were hitting him for victory sure, while Weyhing was holding the Browns down. The home team had the game in their hands, when a fearful downpour of rain put an end to further play for the day. King was too much for them in the second game considering that he had the assistance of Catcher Boyle, who was acting as umpire. In St. Louis they did poorly, and had a player unable to be found with in one of the games there. The battle now depends on the pitchers. If they hold out—and they bid fair to do so—the pennant will pretty near come to this city.

The Philadelphias are the puzzlers this season. They are like that active insect, the flea—to descend to a common simile—when you think you have your thumb on them they are not there. They did well with the Chicagos, and they simply slaughtered the Detroits, winning three straight from the champions. The Indianapolis team are their opponents now for three games, beginning today, and on Thursday they commence a series of three with the Pittsburgs, who have been their easiest victims this season. The boys have a good lead on the Bostonians, and I think they are able to hold their own for some time. Harry Wright is inclined to think that just here is where the Philadelphias take the turn into the zone of good luck and good playing, and thinks their course from this to the end of the season will be improved.

STRAY SPARKS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Gossip About Ball Tossers from Here, There and Everywhere.

On July 8 and 10, 1876, the Mutuals and Louisvilles played two games at Louisville, one of fifteen innings, and the other sixteen, or a total of thirty-one innings before a final result was reached. This year the Cincinnatis and Clevelands played two games of twenty-seven innings before a victory was gained. The first was twelve innings and the latter fifteen. The contests took place in Cincinnati, Aug. 4 and 5.

The old Union Grounds in St. Louis, which became famous with the "Black Diamonds" as the occupants thereof, will soon be a thing of the past. The work of removing the fences and buildings has been going on very rapidly during the past week, and in a few days there will be a huge pile of lumber where once stood the finest ball grounds and buildings in the West.

The Boston Club has signed two new players. They are M. P. Hines, the catcher, and W. Higgins, the second baseman. Both men formerly played with the Bostons. Higgins will take Klusman's place, and Hines will supersede O'Rourke. Klusman and O'Rourke will be released, as their work has been unsatisfactory.

Jack Golden, a young man of Cedar Glades, Ark., was recently killed while playing ball. The Buckvilles were playing the home team and Golden was at the bat. The third ball pitched struck him on the head and he died from the effect of the hit soon afterwards.

A club has been organized at Chautauqua, N. Y., and its nine is composed of college boys. Stagg and Dann are the pitcher and catcher. The crack Oil City team played there Aug. 4, and was shut out without a run or a safe hit. Stagg struck out 23 of the opposing batsmen.

For some reason or another Umpire Doescher is not attending to duty as strictly as he should this season. Why President Wikoff does not have one of his substitute umpires on hand to fill a vacancy is not altogether clear.

Arlie Latham, of the St. Louis Browns, signed a contract on Aug. 7, with Lew Simmons and Grattan Donnelly, to play in the comedy entitled "Fashions," next Winter. He has a very good part, and it is thought he will make quite a hit.

The Central League delegates met Aug. 9, at Scranton, Pa. All of the clubs were represented except Easton. A. C. Campbell, of Wilkesbarre, was elected permanent secretary, and the Hazleton Club was admitted to membership.

The Western clubs of the National League all met with defeat by the Eastern teams Aug. 9 and 10. On Aug. 10 and 13 the Western teams of the American Association easily succeeded in defeating the Eastern teams.

The Detroits are in a very badly crippled state, and are traveling on the wrong train to capture the pennant. Every club meets with misfortune some time during its existence, and Detroit is not an exception to this rule.

It was reported from Davenport, Iowa, Aug. 7, that the directors of the club of that city had refused to ratify the action of the committee who bought the Minneapolis franchise in the Western Association.

A bat slipped from the hands of one of the players in a game at Lima, Ohio, the other day and struck Ellsworth Pillars, a catcher, in the eye, causing him to lose the sight of it.

Bob Emslie, formerly a pitcher of the Baltimore Club, expects to be in proper condition to re-enter the profession next season. So does Gillespie, Gardner and some others.

John M. Ward, of the New York Club, has finally decided to accept the captaincy of one of President Spalding's Australian teams. He has already signed Tiernan to accompany his team.

In a game of nine innings played Aug. 9 in Philadelphia, between the Somersets and Pacifics, only three safe hits were made, the Somersets getting two and their opponents but one.

On Aug. 9, in Philadelphia, Stovey, the pitcher of the Cuban Giants, held the Solar Tips down to one safe hit, that being a three bagger by Koons.

John P. Cassidy, the ex-professional player, is reported as being seriously ill at his home in Brooklyn.

A game was played at Mankato, Minn., Aug. 3, between the Lesums and Mankatos. The former won by a score of 7 to 6.

The Hazleton, Pa., Club is now a member of the Central League, filling the vacancy caused by the disbanded Binghamton Club.

The Solar Tips and Chesters played a game at Chester, Pa., Aug. 4, and the former got only one safe hit.

The Houston Club, of the Texas League, disbanded Aug. 7.

The success of the Cape May nine with visiting teams this season has been remarkable. The Cuban Giants visited that fashionable watering place Aug. 7 and were defeated by the home team by a score of 4 to 3.

George Baker, the well known St. Louis catcher, has been lying ill at his residence, that city. Rheumatism and malarial fever have attacked him at one time. He is now improving, and soon expects to be out of the house again.

President Spalding forwarded a contract to William Sunday of the Pittsburgs to join his Australian combination for next Winter. The papers were received by Sunday while the Pittsburgs were playing in this city.

The veteran George Wright says that it is high time that a rule was made regulating the size of the gloves of the fielders. These are so large now as to give a man an uncalled for advantage in fielding a ball.

There are not many pitchers who can show a better record than Bakely made in two games against the Cincinnatis Aug. 4 and 5. He pitched two consecutive games of twelve and fifteen innings and was not hit hard.

It is said that the young pitchers of the Western Association who will attract the attention of the big League moguls next season are Conway, Swartzell, Winkleman Nichols, Brynan, Duryea, Dwyer, Lovett, Wells, Smith, Klopf and Sowders.

It has been stated that Baker, the crack pitcher of the Newark Club, is for sale. This step is taken to reduce expenses.

The veteran Joe Quest is officiating as an umpire in the Western Association.

President Wikoff of the American Association has issued notice of the following changes of championship dates: The game scheduled for Philadelphia May 23 and postponed will be played at Gloucester Aug. 26 by agreement. The game scheduled for Cleveland Aug. 27 has been changed to Aug. 24 by agreement. The games scheduled for May 25 and postponed and Aug. 25 have been changed from Baltimore to Cincinnati, Aug. 25 and 26, by agreement.

From the West comes word that Louis Schoenck, the first baseman of the Chicago Maroons, has been released to Indianapolis. Schoenck is six feet three inches tall, and weighs nearly 300lb. The report also says: "He is not a hitter, but has no superior as a first baseman, and is a sprinter." Just what the Hoosiers want with a man who cannot bat is rather puzzling, unless they think his sprinting proclivities will enable them to steal balls from the other teams.

From Aug. 4 to 13 inclusive, a period of nine days, the Cincinnatis played no fewer than six extra inning championship games, four of which they won, while one was lost and one was drawn on account of darkness with the score a tie. Two games of twelve innings, and one each of fifteen, fourteen, eleven and ten innings were played. The Baltimore, Brooklyn and Cleveland Clubs each figured in two of these prolonged contests.

Before the game in Cincinnati Aug. 11 a long distance throwing contest took place, Burns, Foutz and O'Brien of the Brooklyn Club competing. Burns threw 364ft. 6in.; O'Brien, 361ft. 5in., and Foutz, 335ft. 4in., Vaughn of Louisville still holds the lead. His throw beats Burns' some inches.

In San Francisco Aug. 4 the Haverlys defeated the G. A. M.'s by a score of 12 to 4. On Aug. 5, in the same city, the Haverlys defeated the Stocktons by a score of 5 to 3, over fifteen thousand persons being present. At Santa Cruz, Aug. 5, the Pioneers defeated the G. A. M.'s by a score of 9 to 8. Twelve innings were played.

A large crowd witnessed the St. Louis Athletic game in St. Louis, Aug. 12. After the contest a portion of the grand stand fell, carrying down about one hundred men. They fell a distance of fifteen feet. One man was badly hurt and may not recover. Several others were injured, but not seriously.

It is claimed that the Cleveland Club is not satisfied with the change of the 50 cent tariff to 25 cents, and that it purposes to still charge the higher rate of admission. If the American Association objects, the directors will then sell out the club, players, etc., and disband.

It is reported that Tom Ramsey, the noted left handed pitcher of the Louisvilles, has been reinstated by President Davidson of that club. If Ramsey keeps himself in proper condition from this out he will quite likely be paid for all the time he lost while under suspension.

The Central Pennsylvania League is left with only three clubs. The Mt. Carmel-Shamokin combination disbanded Aug. 11. The season has not been a success financially. The withdrawal of Hazelton has had a very damaging effect on the League.

The entire Salem team of the New England League with the exception of Mike Hines, the catcher, whom Boston signed, has been purchased by the Easton (Pa.) Club of the Central League. The present Easton players will all or nearly all be released.

In the Central League championship game at Scranton, Pa., Aug. 13, the Eastons were only able to get two safe hits from Jack Lynch's pitching. The Scrantons played without an error of any kind, and won by a score of 1 to 0.

Umpire Daniels of the National League staff is reported as being at his home in Hartford, Ct., suffering with a fractured rib and a serious bruise on his left ankle.

President Von der Ahe of the St. Louis Browns claims that he has not been paid yet by the Athletic Club for the release of Welch and Gleason, and he says that the Athletics owe him $3,000.

It has been reported that the Chicago Club has purchased Lovett's release from the Omaha Club. Lovett is said to be the best pitcher in the Western Association.

Pitcher Mitchell, who has been with the Salem, Mass., team nearly all season, will probably sign with the St. Louis Browns.

In Philadelphia, Aug. 11, Carroll, the pitcher of the Highlands, held the Wynnewoods down to one safe hit.

The Mallables of Cleveland played in Erie, Pa., Aug. 10 and 11, with the Drummers. Each club won one game, the scores being 9 to 8 and 6 to 2.

Laroque's release was purchased from the Detroit Club by the London (Ont.) Club. The latter gave the same amount that Detroit paid to get him.

The Athletic Club of Philadelphia has released Bobby Mathews, the veteran pitcher.

Catcher Zinn has been released by the Athletics of Philadelphia. He is free to sign anywhere he likes.

The Brandywine Club was officially disbanded at a meeting of the stockholders Aug. 11 at Westchester, Pa.

An unexpected victory was scored by the Pittsburgs Aug. 13 in Washington, although they were then outbatted and outfielded. O'Day shut the visitors out without a hit until the eighth inning, when he pitched wildly, which, with singles by Miller and Kuehne, let in three unearned runs. The home team were unable to bunch any hits off Galvin, and their two runs were due to an error by Kuehne.

New York vs. Indianapolis.

Another exciting contest took place Aug. 7 at the Polo Grounds, this city. Welch was wild in the first two innings, giving three men bases on balls, which, together with a safe hit by Hines and errors by Ewing and Connor, allowed the visitors to score four runs and take a long lead. The home team made a good uphill fight, and in the eighth inning scored the two winning runs on a timely two bagger by Connor, who led in batting. Whitney and Seery excelled in fielding on behalf of their respective teams.

The New Yorks scored their eleventh victory of the series Aug. 8, outplaying their opponents at all points. Keefe kept the visitors from making more than five safe hits, two of which were bunched in the sixth inning, and yielded them their only run. Boyle was batted with ease, especially by Tiernan, who made a double and two singles. Clever catches by Connor and McGeachy were the fielding features.

Boston vs. Indianapolis.

The reconstructed Boston nine defeated the Indianapolis team Aug. 9 in Boston, after a contest marked by brilliant fielding. Higgins, the new second baseman of the home team, accepted all of twelve chances and figured in four double plays, one of which he made unassisted. No fewer than seven double plays were made by the two teams. Conway held the visitors down to two hits in the last six innings. Buckley, who was substituted for Denny, made two costly errors.

Hard hitting helped the home team to win Aug. 10, although the visitors were then strengthened by Denny's reappearance. Shreve was pounded all over the field, the Bostons batting him fourteen times safely, including three hits for triples and a home run. Brown did the best batting, making a home run, triple and single. Clarkson kept the visitors from making more than six safe hits, which were widely scattered.

Superior batting alone gave the victory to the home team Aug. 11, Boyle being then hit safely fifteen times. Conway was batted freely, but was effective at critical points, although poorly supported in the field.

Boston vs. Pittsburg.

The twelfth game was played Aug. 7 in Boston, the home team then scoring their fifth victory of the series. Conway and Staley pitched effectively, but the latter was poorly supported, especially in the seventh and ninth innings. The visitors were weakened by the absence of Dunlap, who was taken with chills just before the game. Nash, Klusman and Brown played remarkably well for the home team.

Eleven innings were played Aug. 8, when darkness terminated the contest with the score still a tie. Only one run was earned in the game, and that was by the visitors in the last half of the ninth inning. Beckley did the best batting, his four hits including a double bagger. A splendid play by Morrill and Kelly at the plate alone prevented the visitors from winning in the eleventh.

Philadelphia vs. Indianapolis.

Ten innings were required to decide the contest Aug. 13 in Philadelphia, a streak of batting at the finish then helping the home team to their fifth victory of the series. A base on balls given Fogarty and a double bagger by Farrar in the third inning allowed the home team one run. A wild throw by Mulvey enabled the visitors to make their only run and tie the score. Successive singles by Wood, Andrews and Fogarty gave the Philadelphians the winning run before a man was out in the last half of the tenth inning. Burdick and Buffinton were remarkably effective in the box, three of the few safe hits made off the former being scratches.

Louis, Baltimore and Louisville Clubs wanted the price reduced to 25 cents. The Athletics favored giving the other clubs the same privileges they now enjoy. The Kansas City delegates were on the fence. They wanted to be quoted as voting with the majority. President Byrne, on behalf of the Brooklyn Club, then said that he did not object to the reduction to 25 cents, providing the American Association went back to the guarantee system. The Cincinnati Club not being represented, it is concluded that it was satisfied with anything. The Cleveland Club alone stood out for the 50 cent admission fee. As the majority of the clubs seemed satisfied, Mr. Byrne then offered an amendment making the guarantee to be paid visiting clubs $130, and providing that the new plan goes into effect Aug. 25, after the Eastern clubs return from the West. The Louisville Club preferred the percentage plan with 25 cents admission, but as the other clubs favored the self-sustaining principle, the resolution as presented by Mr. Byrne was carried. The clubs voting for it were the Athletic, Baltimore, Brooklyn, Kansas City, Louisville and St. Louis. Cleveland alone voted against the change.

St. Louis Still at the Front—Brooklyn Second, and Doing Well.

The St. Louis Browns retain their lead, while the Brooklyns are now second, and the Cincinnatis have also succeeded in again passing the Athletics. The Louisvilles and Clevelands, as usual, alternate in sixth place. The record to Aug. 13, inclusive:

Cincinnati vs. Baltimore.

The eighth game was played Aug. 7, in Cincinnati, having been prevented by rain on the previous day. No fewer than fourteen innings were necessary to decide the contest, it being the third consecutive extra inning game played by the home team. An error by McPhee and singles by Farrell and Shindle allowed the visitors to tie the score in the ninth inning. Goldsby failed to touch second base in running on a long hit in the eleventh inning, and thus lost a chance for the Baltimores to win. The Cincinnatis won the game in the fourteenth inning on a long hit by Reilly for a home run.

Superior fielding and the timely bunching of hits enabled the home team to win Aug. 8. Farrell, who was injured in the preceding game, was unable to play, and George Bradley, late of the New Orleans Club, was substituted at short stop. The Cincinnatis secured a winning lead in the third inning, when wild pitching by J. Smith, together with two safe hits, yielded four runs.

Another exciting contest took place Aug. 13, when twelve innings were necessary before the home team scored the victory. The double umpire plan was tried during the first nine innings and proved a failure, Gaffney then going in. The home team batted out two earned runs in the seventh inning and tied the score. A missed third strike by Cantz and a safe hit by Fennelly allowed the Cincinnatis to make the winning run after two men were out in the last half of the twelfth inning.

Athletic vs. St. Louis.

The largest attendance of the local season was attracted July 7, in Philadelphia, in the expectation of seeing an exciting contest. Ferguson refused to umpire, and the result was that the double umpire plan was tried with a disastrous result for the home team. Boyle was very severe on Weyhing, in calling balls and strikes. In the third inning, after two men were out, Robinson was given his base on balls instead of being called out on strikes, and as O'Neil followed with a double, and Comiskey with a home run, the St. Louis scored three runs instead of being blanked. The Athletics bunched six safe hits in the sixth and eighth innings, but could not overcome the visitors' lead. O'Neil made four successive safe hits, including a triple and double.

The veteran Cuthbert officiated in the absence of a regular umpire Aug. 8, when the Athletics evened up the victories in the series. The home team batted Hudson freely, Lyons and Larkin leading with three safe hits each. The Browns were unable to bat Seward, making only two scattering hits after the first inning, when errors saved them from being shut out.

The Athletics were shut out Aug. 12, when King kept them down to two scattering hits. Only four safe hits were made off Seward, but the Browns bunched two in the fourth inning, and, aided by a base on balls given McCarthy, scored the two winning runs. Cincinnati vs. Brooklyn.

Ten innings were necessary to decide the contest Aug. 10 in Cincinnati, the home team then scoring their fourth victory over the Brooklyns, who were strengthened by Burns, late of the Baltimore Club. The visitors took the lead in the first inning, when a safe hit by Burns after two men were out drove in two runs. Elmer Smith then settled down to work, and four hits, well scattered, were all that the Brooklyns could make during the remainder of the game. The home team tied the score in the fourth inning, and it remained so until the tenth. Then, after two men were out, four successive safe hits helped the Cincinnatis to three runs and the victory.

After another prolonged struggle the Brooklyns beat the Cincinnatis for the ninth time Aug. 11, eleven innings being then necessary before the winning run was scored. The home team started off with the lead, which they held until the ninth inning, when the Brooklyns batted out two earned runs and tied the score. A triple bagger by McPhee helped the Cincinnatis to a run in the eleventh, and singles by Hughes and Pinkney and a double by O'Brien then gave the visitors two runs after two men were out in the last half of the same inning.

S. S. STEWART'S

Celebrated Banjos and Banjo Publications.

Send for Illustrated Price List. Send for Catalogue of Banjo Music and Books. Send 10 cents for a copy of THE BANJO AND GUITAR JOURNAL. Address S. S. STEWART, No. 223 Church St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. De Witt C. Everest, who sailed, with his sister, Miss Eleanor Everest, on the second of June last, for Paris, France, has made a hit with his Stewart Banjo among the French people.

He writes that he met a great many French people who had never seen or heard an instrument of this kind until they saw and heard Mr. Everest's Stewart Banjo.

As Mr. Everest is studying the violin under the French masters he has the best of opportunities to introduce the banjo into the society to which it rightly belongs. The banjo has heretofore been introduced in France merely among the "Varieties" class, and is now, we believe, introduced for the first time among cultured people, who take to it at once, as we felt sure that they would.

A correspondent writes as follows:

"Mr. D. C. Everest, now in Paris, has been accepted as a pupil on the violin by Mons. Godard, and is making rapid progress. He is receiving many social attentions and everywhere the banjo, one of Stewart's best, is received with great delight.

"The young artist will return to his home in September to continue with his large class of pupils."

A letter from Mr E in Paris, dated July 21, reads:

"Thursday evening my sister and I dined at Madame Marchesie', and there were twelve distinguished people present. After dinner, about forty people came expressly to hear the Banjo played. Countess —— came to me and said: 'What a lovely instrument you have. It sounds more like the harp than any other instrument I have ever heard.' Baron —— said the same thing to me. Only one lady had ever seen a Banjo, but never saw one as fine as my Stewart."

IT SEEMS THAT THE BANJO IS RISING.

THE IRISH INTERNATIONAL TEAMS.

Preparations for the carrying out of the project of sending to the States two representative Celtic athletic teams, composed respectively of amateur athletes proper and of those who are especially devoted to the practice of the ancient game of hurling, were progressing favorably at last advices from the downtrodden Emerald Isle. The teams are to be sent out, if at all, under the auspices of the Gaelic Athletic Association, which has numerous branches in all parts of Ireland, and is a separate organization from the older Irish A. A., although working in harmony with the latter. Arrangements were rapidly approaching completion, although there was yet some uncertainty as to whether the required amount necessary to fit out and liquidate the expenses of fifty men would be forthcoming. Therefore the Central Council of the G. A. A. deemed it advisable to issue a circular to the clubs belonging to the association and to the public at large, setting forth the object of what is popularly known over there as the "Gaelic invasion of America," the purpose of the document being, of course, to open the purse strings of the people by stirring up national feeling in the matter. The substance of the circular appeared in last week's issue Should the requisite amount, about $5,000, not be forthcoming by Aug. 6, the undertaking was to be abandoned for the present season. The intended "invasion" is certainly conceived on a grand scale, and after so much having been done it would be a great pity if the hopes of the projectors should not be realized, at least so far as making the journey to Yankeeland is concerned. After the invaders arrive on our shores the athletes of home production, together with a few first class importations, with whose names they are familiar, such as Carter, Conneff, Purcell and Barry, will endeavor in friendly strife to excel the best efforts of the strangers on the path and in the field. But, whatever be the measure of success with which our Irish cousins meet while on American soil, they can at least confidently anticipate a hearty welcome and hospitable treatment wherever they appear on this side of the Atlantic.

SULLIVAN AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

The alleged good resolutions recently made by John L. Sullivan were not long adhered to. Last week the ex-champion and one of his boon companions went to the races at Beacon Park, Boston, and while returning, both in an inebriated condition, their vehicle collided with a carriage driven by W. H. Marsh, a well known citizen. The occupants of both conveyances were thrown out and the vehicles were more or less smashed up. Mr. Marsh was considerably but not seriously bruised, Sullivan's companion escaped with a few slight scratches, while "the big fellow" was knocked insensible, his head being quite badly cut, and one of his eyes was blackened. At the instance of Marsh the others were arrested and locked up, John L. remaining in durance about three hours, when Tom Delay secured his release on bail, to appear for examination on Monday morning. He was then unable to leave his room, however, and the judge of the Brighton District Court ordered him to be defaulted. Evidently John L. cannot now do with impunity in the city of his birth things which in the days of his greatness were overlooked. He is down, and he can hardly blame those who avail themselves of opportunities afforded to take a crack at the man whom in times gone by they were wont to look upon with awe. "Sully" will have to mend his ways for good very soon, or he will entirely lose his fast weakening grip on the good will of the general public. He has before afforded ample evidence of his ability to control his appetite for intoxicants, and the knowledge of what it has cost him in money, popularity, standing as a pugilist and physical health, together with his costly and bitter experience since his return from abroad, ought to be sufficient to impel him to set his face resolutely against his besetting vice, and make an honest and earnest effort to redeem himself and again become, so far as may be possible, the splendid specimen of physical manhood that he once was. Should he not make the effort ere long he will forfeit the friendship of even the few who, through good and evil report have, owing to their admiration for certain estimable qualities of head and heart inherent in his nature, remained steadfastly by him, and who are still ready to do anything in their power to help John in an honest endeavor to again place himself where the American public wish to see him. If Sullivan will but take a speedy and enduring "tumble" and promise not to take "a drop" the people will all be with him once more.

A ROWING SURPRISE.

The championship double scull match, decided at Saratoga Lake recently, did not terminate in accordance with popular anticipation. Largely because of the prestige which the title of champion carries with it in all branches of sport, as well as on account of his acknowledged superior ability with the sculls, John Teemer and mate were made prime favorites. The result was very disappointing to their supporters, and attests that horse racing is not the only sort of sport that is "wery onsarting," Gaudaur and McKay, more alert than their opponents, got off with an advantage, and never relinquished their lead throughout the contest. They fairly outrowed their adversaries on the way to the turning stakes, and after heading for home had the race safe, eventually winning with a good bit up their sleeves. Teemer claims to have been handicapped by his partner, giving as a reason for failure to win that Hamm was unable to respond to his demands for a spurt on the homestretch. Of course everyone knows that Hamm does not class with Teemer as a sculler, just as McKay does not with Gaudaur; but all who witnessed the race on Saratoga Lake were satisfied that the best mated pair won the day. Had Teemer and Hamm been wise enough to obtain the benefit of more practice together previous to the race, they would doubtless have been able to make a better showing, but that they could have defeated Gaudaur and McKay we do not believe. It was surprising to see so little interest manifested in the event by the public at large. Not only did the Summer residents at Saratoga ignore it, but there was, figuratively speaking, but a handful of others present as spectators, and they were mostly professional and amateur oarsmen. The betting, too, was exceedingly light, mainly for the reason that those who wished to put their money on Gaudaur and mate demanded odds that the opposite party refused to give, so that little lucre changed owners on the result.

AQUATIC.

The Sculling Championship.

John Teemer, accompanied by his boating partner, Al. Hamm, called at THE CLIPPER office on Monday afternoon, Aug. 13, having come on to the metropolis for the purpose of meeting William O'Connor or his backer, Mr. Rogers of Toronto, Ont., with a view to making a match for the championship, Teemer having notified the Canadians by wire of his desire to meet one or the other of them here. In response came the information that it would be impossible for either of them to come to New York. The deposit of $100 posted in Toronto was forwarded by instruction of Rogers to The Boston Herald, which he named for stakeholder. The conditions he proposes are that the race shall be over a distance of three miles, with a turn, for $1,000 a side, and be rowed on any fair lake course in America. The champion was requested to forward to Toronto articles drawn up in accordance with these terms for O'Connor's consideration and signature. Teemer stated that he would forward the articles on the following day, and that he intended to insert in the document Sept. 29 as the date, and a lake in the upper part of New York State as the place. Other engagements now on hand, and the inability to secure a new boat earlier, would prevent him rowing sooner. Teemer looks exceedingly well and he says he never felt better or stronger, and never could row faster than he is now doing. Should the match with O'Connor not be arranged, he contemplates a visit to the Pacific Coast in the Fall, and has hopes of there arranging a match with Peterson. He will not go to the Antipodes this year, preferring to await the result of the coming second contest between Hanlan and Kemp, as a victory for the former would obviate the necessity of his going so far to have a try for the championship of the world. He and Hamm may go next year, however.

DAN GALANAUGH easily defeated Harry Nagley, both of Philadelphia, in a three mile race in seventeen foot boats on the Delaware, Aug. 6. The course was from Gloucester City to the red buoy and return, and Galanaugh, who led from the first stroke, finished two hundred yards ahead, in 25m. 20s.

THE EVENT of the present week in aquatic circles in this vicinity is the annual regatta of the Long Island Amateur Rowing Association, to be held at Bowery Bay on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 18. Two of the contests are open to all amateurs, the others being confined to members of the association. That for eight oared shells, which is the more important event, has received entries from the Atalanta, Union, Nonpareil, Varuna and Passaic boat clubs, and gives promise of being an exciting contest, with the latter crew the most likely winners. All the races are likely to furnish close finishes, and a good afternoon's sport is assured.

THE WRANGLE between John Joyce of Springfield and William O'Toole of Worcester, Mass., as to the conditions of their race, seems about over. Joyce has finally consented to make the course three miles instead of two, and the matter of expenses has also been amicably adjusted. Lake Quinsigamond is the spot chosen, and the date will probably be within a month. The stakes will be $150 a side, with $50 added. James Ten Eyck of Worcester is very anxious to row Joyce two or three miles, under any conditions, for $350.

MEMBERS of the Metropolitan Boat Club of this city are to compete for prizes offered for races in different classes of boats, as follow: Pair oared gigs, for those who never rowed in a race, to take place Aug. 25; senior single sculls, Sept. 1; single scull handicap, Sept. 8; double sculls, Sept. 15. Handsome prizes, offered by different parties interested in the club, are to be contended for.

IT IS AMONG the probabilities that before the return of Jim Keenan of Boston from San Francisco, where he goes to see the glove fight between Godfrey and Jackson, a match will be made between the scullers Wallace Ross and Henry Peterson, Keenan finding the money for the former, who will probably accompany him to the Pacific Slope.

A REGATTA is to be held at Salt Lake, Utah, about Aug 30, under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Amateur Rowing Association, five clubs belonging to which organization will be represented. The programme embraces races for fours, doubles and singles.

THERE is a letter at this office for Wallace Ross.

BILLIARDS.

The Saratoga Tournament.

This tournament, of which much was expected by its projectors, came to a close on Aug. 8, the concluding game being between Daly and Slosson, both of whom had beaten Sexton in the two previous games in rather a hollow manner. The score of the first game, played on Aug. 6 between Daly and Sexton, has appeared in these columns. Slosson and Sexton followed on Aug. 7, in what proved to be a slow and uninteresting contest, many of the spectators leaving before the conclusion of the game, owing to its tediousness. The score was:

Slosson—0, 9, 0, 1, 4, 2, 1, 1, 0, 10, 1, 8, 1, 0, 7, 3, 1, 2, 1, 4, 17, 1, 7, 9, 4, 0, 20, 1, 0, 3, 2, 5, 2, 8, 4, 0, 0, 2, 0, 0, 11, 3, 0, 8, 1, 0, 0, 1, 0, 4, 0, 10, 1, 0, 11. Total, 300.

Sexton—2, 0, 2, 2, 1, 3, 0, 0, 1, 0, 3, 4, 3, 0, 0, 0, 0, 2, 1, 1, 0, 0, 0, 0, 1, 0, 3, 0, 0, 3, 1, 2, 1, 1, 2, 2, 0, 0, 6, 6, 1, 0, 0, 0, 10, 5, 7, 7, 0, 3, 0, 0, 3, 0, 3. Total, 100.

Winner's average, 3.7-11. Loser's average, 1.23-27.

The final game between Slosson and Daly, on Dec. 8, was marked by better all around play, the contestants executing many difficult and brilliant shots, which were enthusiastically received by a large and fashionable audience. Slosson was the favorite, and finally won by a score of 300 against 153. The score by innings was as follows:

Slosson—2, 0, 11, 0, 0, 4, 1, 2, 0, 0, 15, 0, 12, 0, 5, 6, 3, 0, 5, 6, 0, 16, 4, 3, 3, 22, 13, 0, 1, 2, 6, 0, 3, 6, 4, 3, 0, 0, 4, 3, 0, 0, 3, 3, 0, 3, 12, 2, 11, 1. Total, 300

Daly—0, 1, 4, 0, 0, 10, 1, 5, 0, 0, 0, 0, 2, 6, 0, 2, 1, 5, 2, 5, 0, 1, 5, 0, 3, 1, 0, 11, 0, 7, 5, 1, 13, 2, 16, 0, 20, 0, 0, 1, 4, 6, 0, 0, 9, 3, 6, 1, 3, 1. Total, 153.

Slosson wins the first prize, $500; Daly second, $350, and Sexton the third, $150.

A BILLIARD TOURNAMENT, to be played in New York during the coming Fall, is being agitated, and it is quite probable that such an affair can be organized and successfully carried out. The promised entries, so far, are Slosson, Sexton and Daly, and it is expected that at least three more players will participate. Schaefer is to be one of the latter.

SEXTON'S ROOM is to be thoroughly renovated in time for the Fall and Winter business. New cloths for the tables, new balls, cues, etc., are among the good things promised, while the floor is to be covered entire with a new carpet. The work begins Aug. 20.

JAMES LYNCH, for the past fourteen years a resident of Baltimore, and for some time back superintendent of the Eutaw House billiard room, is at present disengaged, through the letting of the hotel to an outside party.

THOMAS NELMS, a brother of the late Edward Nelms of Philadelphia, died on Staten Island, July 24, aged fifty-two years. The deceased at one time kept a billiard room in Camden, N. J., and was once an employe of Chris. Bird in Philadelphia.

MAURICE DALY, accompanied by his family, is sojourning in the Adirondacks.

Saturday, Aug. 11, was the first day of the second Summer meeting, and, the weather being cloudy and cold, with showers, there was not a large attendance, while the track was good, and the results evenly divided between the favorites and others. The defeat of Badge for the United States Hotel Stakes was a great surprise, and would not have taken place had his rider attended to business. MONMOUTH PARK RACES.

An Outsider Wins the Junior Champion and Firenzi the Campion Stakes.

The attendance at the course of the Monmouth Park Association on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 7, was not so large as usual, while the weather was cloudy and the track somewhat heavy. The feature of the day was the victory of two horses belonging to S. W. Street of Brighton Beach, one of whom was a 30 to 1 chance and the betting against the other was 20 to 1. Little Minch had been brought down from Saratoga expressly to run for the Eatontown Stakes, and he realized the expectations of his owners. Result: Handicap sweepstakes, for all ages, $25 each, $750 added, of which $150 to second, seven furlongs—S. W. Street's Niagara, by Luke Blackburn, 4—100, G. Covington, first, in 1:30; Telie Doe, 6—115, Garrison, the favorite, second, by four lengths; Fred B., 5—115, Hayward, third, a head away.....The Camden Stakes, for two year olds, $50 each, $15 forfeit, $1,500 added, $500 to second, allowances, six furlongs—J. Covington, second, by two lengths; Chemise, 109, Shauer, third, close up. .....The Eatontown Stakes, for three year olds and upward, $100 each, h. f., $1,500 added, $500 to second, allowances, one mile—Chicago Stable's Little Minch, by Glenelg, aged, 110, G. Covington, the favorite, first, in 1:44; Eurus, 5—120, Garrison, second by a length and a half; Bradford, 4—108, W. Donohue, third, three lengths behind.....Handicap sweepstakes, for all ages, $30 each, $1,000 dollars added, $250 to second, a mile and a furlong—A. Belmont's Oriflamme, by Flood, 4—112, F. RACEHORSES BURNED.—By an accident that occurred on the Erie Railway, west of Shohola, Pa., at 1.15 A. M. Aug. 13, thirteen of the thoroughbred racers and carriage horses that were being shipped to California by Mrs. Langtry and Fred Gebhard were either killed outright or caught in the ruins and burned to death. The running horses included Eole, Eolist, St. Saviour, Pauline and Palanca, all of whom have raced with more or less success on the American turf, while Eole also ran unsuccessfully in England in 1885. The horses, which were valued at $100,000, and had been shipped at the risk of the owners, were in charge of C. W. Aby of California, Mr. Gebhard's stud farm manager, and Matt D. Storms, the latter's horse Scandanavia being in the lot. Both the men were badly injured.

THE IRISH INTERNATIONAL TEAMS.

Preparations for the carrying out of the project of sending to the States two representative Celtic athletic teams, composed respectively of amateur athletes proper and of those who are especially devoted to the practice of the ancient game of hurling, were progressing favorably at last advices from the downtrodden Emerald Isle. The teams are to be sent out, if at all, under the auspices of the Gaelic Athletic Association, which has numerous branches in all parts of Ireland, and is a separate organization from the older Irish A. A., although working in harmony with the latter. Arrangements were rapidly approaching completion, although there was yet some uncertainty as to whether the required amount necessary to fit out and liquidate the expenses of fifty men would be forthcoming. Therefore the Central Council of the G. A. A. deemed it advisable to issue a circular to the clubs belonging to the association and to the public at large, setting forth the object of what is popularly known over there as the "Gaelic invasion of America," the purpose of the document being, of course, to open the purse strings of the people by stirring up national feeling in the matter. The substance of the circular appeared in last week's issue Should the requisite amount, about $5,000, not be forthcoming by Aug. 6, the undertaking was to be abandoned for the present season. The intended "invasion' is certainly conceived on a grand scale, and after so much having been done it would be a great pity if the hopes of the projectors should not be realized, at least so far as making the journey to Yankeeland is concerned. After the invaders arrive on our shores the athletes of home production, together with a few first class importations, with whose names they are familiar, such as Carter, Conneff, Purcell and Barry, will endeavor in friendly strife to excel the best efforts of the strangers on the path and in the field. But, whatever be the measure of success with which our Irish cousins meet while on American soil, they can at least confidently anticipate a hearty welcome and hospitable treatment wherever they appear on this side of the Atlantic.

SULLIVAN AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

The alleged good resolutions recently made by John L. Sullivan were not long adhered to. Last week the ex-champion and one of his boon companions went to the races at Beacon Park, Boston, and while returning, both in an inebriated condition, their vehicle collided with a carriage driven by W. H. Marsh, a well known citizen. The occupants of both conveyances were thrown out and the vehicles were more or less smashed up. Mr. Marsh was considerably but not seriously bruised, Sullivan's companion escaped with a few slight scratches, while "the big fellow" was knocked insensible, his head being quite badly cut, and one of his eyes was blackened. At the instance of Marsh the others were arrested and locked up, John L. remaining in durance about three hours, when Tom Delay secured his release on bail, to appear for examination on Monday morning. He was then unable to leave his room, however, and the judge of the Brighton District Court ordered him to be defaulted. Evidently John L. cannot now do with impunity in the city of his birth things which in the days of his greatness were overlooked. He is down, and he can hardly blame those who avail themselves of opportunities afforded to take a crack at the man whom in times gone by they were wont to look upon with awe. "Sully" will have to mend his ways for good very soon, or he will entirely lose his fast weakening grip on the good will of the general public. He has before afforded ample evidence of his ability to control his appetite for intoxicants, and the knowledge of what it has cost him in money, popularity, standing as a pugilist and physical health, together with his costly and bitter experience since his return from abroad, ought to be sufficient to impel him to set his face resolutely against his besetting vice, and make an honest and earnest effort to redeem himself and again become, so far as may be possible, the splendid specimen of physical manhood that he once was. Should he not make the effort ere long he will forfeit the friendship of even the few who, through good and evil report have, owing to their admiration for certain estimable qualities of head and heart inherent in his nature, remained steadfastly by him, and who are still ready to do anything in their power to help John in an honest endeavor to again place himself where the American public wish to see him. If Sullivan will but take a speedy and enduring "tumble" and promise not to take "a drop" the people will all be with him once more.

A ROWING SURPRISE.

The championship double scull match, decided at Saratoga Lake recently, did not terminate in accordance with popular anticipation. Largely because of the prestige which the title of champion carries with it in all branches of sport, as well as on account of his acknowledged superior ability with the sculls, John Teemer and mate were made prime favorites. The result was very disappointing to their supporters, and attests that horse racing is not the only sort of sport that is "wery onsartin," Gaudaur and McKay, more alert than their opponents, got off with an advantage, and never relinquished their lead throughout the contest. They fairly outrowed their adversaries on the way to the turning stakes, and after heading for home had the race safe, eventually winning with a good bit up their sleeves. Teemer claims to have been handicapped by his partner, giving as a reason for failure to win that Hamm was unable to respond to his demands for a spurt on the homestretch. Of course everyone knows that Hamm does not class with Teemer as a sculler, just as McKay does not with Gaudaur; but all who witnessed the race on Saratoga Lake were satisfied that the best mated pair won the day. Had Teemer and Hamm been wise enough to obtain the benefit of more practice together previous to the race, they would doubtless have been able to make a better showing, but that they could have defeated Gaudaur and McKay we do not believe. It was surprising to see so little interest manifested in the event by the public at large. Not only did the Summer residents at Saratoga ignore it, but there was, figuratively speaking, but a handful of others present as spectators, and they were mostly professional and amateur oarsmen. The betting, too, was exceedingly light, mainly for the reason that those who wished to put their money on Gaudaur and mate demanded odds that the opposite party refused to give, so that little lucre changed owners on the result.

AQUATIC.

The Sculling Championship.

John Teemer, accompanied by his boating partner, Al. Hamm, called at THE CLIPPER office on Monday afternoon, Aug. 13, having come on to the metropolis for the purpose of meeting William O'Connor or his backer, Mr. Rogers of Toronto, Ont., with a view to making a match for the championship, Teemer having notified the Canadians by wire of his desire to meet one or the other of them here. In response came the information that it would be impossible for either of them to come to New York. The deposit of $100 posted in Toronto was forwarded by instruction of Rogers to The Boston Herald, which he named for stakeholder. The conditions he proposes are that the race shall be over a distance of three miles, with a turn, for $1,000 a side, and be rowed on any fair lake course in America. The champion was requested to forward to Toronto articles drawn up in accordance with these terms for O'Connor's consideration and signature. Teemer stated that he would forward the articles on the following day, and that he intended to insert in the document Sept. 29 as the date, and a lake in the upper part of New York State as the place. Other engagements now on hand, and the inability to secure a new boat earlier, would prevent him rowing sooner. Teemer looks exceedingly well and he says he never felt better or stronger, and never could row faster than he is now doing. Should the match with O'Connor not be arranged, he contemplates a visit to the Pacific Coast in the Fall, and has hopes of there arranging a match with Peterson. He will not go to the Antipodes this year, preferring to await the result of the coming second contest between Hanlan and Kemp, as a victory for the former would obviate the necessity of his going so far to have a try for the championship of the world. He and Hamm may go next year, however.

DAN GALANAUGH easily defeated Harry Nagley, both of Philadelphia, in a three mile race in seventeen foot boats on the Delaware, Aug. 6. The course was from Gloucester City to the red buoy and return, and Galanaugh, who led from the first stroke, finished two hundred yards ahead, in 25m. 20s.

THE EVENT of the present week in aquatic circles in this vicinity is the annual regatta of the Long Island Amateur Rowing Association, to be held at Bowery Bay on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 18. Two of the contests are open to all amateurs, the others being confined to members of the association. That for eight oared shells, which is the more important event, has received entries from the Atalanta, Union, Nonpareil, Varuna and Passaic boat clubs, and gives promise of being an exciting contest, with the latter crew the most likely winners. All the races are likely to furnish close finishes, and a good afternoon's sport is assured.

THE WRANGLE between John Joyce of Springfield and William O'Toole of Worcester, Mass., as to the conditions of their race, seems about over. Joyce has finally consented to make the course three miles instead of two, and the matter of expenses has also been amicably adjusted. Lake Quinsigamond is the spot chosen, and the date will probably be within a month. The stakes will be $150 a side, with $50 added. James Ten Eyck of Worcester is very anxious to row Joyce two or three miles, under any conditions, for $350.

MEMBERS of the Metropolitan Boat Club of this city are to compete for prizes offered for races in different classes of boats, as follow: Pair oared gigs, for those who never rowed in a race, to take place Aug. 25; senior single sculls, Sept. 1; single scull handicap, Sept. 8; double sculls, Sept. 15. Handsome prizes, offered by different parties interested in the club, are to be contended for.

IT IS AMONG the probabilities that before the return of Jim Keenan of Boston from San Francisco, where he goes to see the glove fight between Godfrey and Jackson, a match will be made between the scullers Wallace Ross and Henry Peterson, Keenan finding the money for the former, who will probably accompany him to the Pacific Slope.

A REGATTA is to be held at Salt Lake, Utah, about Aug 30, under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Amateur Rowing Association, five clubs belonging to which organization will be represented. The programme embraces races for fours, doubles and singles.

THERE is a letter at this office for Wallace Ross.

BILLIARDS.

The Saratoga Tournament.

This tournament, of which much was expected by its projectors, came to a close on Aug. 8, the concluding game being between Daly and Slosson, both of whom had beaten Sexton in the two previous games in rather a hollow manner. The score of the first game, played on Aug. 6 between Daly and Sexton, has appeared in these columns. Slosson and Sexton followed on Aug. 7, in what proved to be a slow and uninteresting contest, many of the spectators leaving before the conclusion of the game, owing to its tediousness. The score was:

Slosson—0, 9, 0, 1, 4, 3, 1, 1, 9, 10, 1, 8, 1, 0, 7, 3, 1, 2, 1, 4, 17, 1, 7, 9, 4, 0, 20, 1, 0, 3, 2, 5, 2, 8, 4, 0, 0, 2, 0, 0, 11, 3, 0, 8, 1, 0, 0, 1, 0, 4, 0, 10, 1, 0, 11. Total, 200.

Sexton—2, 0, 2, 2, 1, 2, 0, 0, 1, 0, 3, 4, 3, 0, 0, 0, 0, 9, 2, 1, 1, 0, 0, 0, 1, 0, 3, 0, 0, 3, 1, 2, 1, 1, 2, 2, 0, 0, 6, 6, 1, 0, 0, 10, 5, 7, 7, 0, 3, 0, 0, 3, 0, 3. Total, 100.

Winner's average, 3.7-11. Loser's average, 1.23 27.

The final game between Slosson and Daly, on Dec. 8, was marked by better all around play, the contestants executing many difficult and brilliant shots, which were enthusiastically received by a large and fashionable audience. Slosson was the favorite, and finally won by a score of 200 against 153. The score by innings was as follows:

Slosson—2, 0, 11, 0, 0, 4, 1, 2, 0, 0, 15, 0, 12, 0, 5, 6, 3, 0, 5, 6, 0, 16, 4, 3, 3, 22, 13, 0, 1, 2, 6, 0, 3, 6, 4, 3, 0, 0, 4, 3, 0, 0, 0, 3, 3, 0, 3, 12, 2, 11, 1. Total, 200.

Daly—0, 1, 4, 0, 0, 10, 1, 5, 0, 0, 0, 0, 2, 6, 0, 2, 1, 5, 2, 5, 0, 1, 5, 0, 3, 1, 0, 11, 0, 7, 5, 1, 13, 2, 16, 0, 20, 0, 0, 1, 4, 6, 0, 0, 9, 3, 6, 1, 3, 1. Total, 153.

Slosson wins the first prize, $300; Daly second, $350, and Sexton the third, $150.

A BILLIARD TOURNAMENT, to be played in New York during the coming Fall, is being agitated, and it is quite probable that such an affair can be organized and successfully carried out. The promised entries, so far, are Slosson, Sexton and Daly, and it is expected that at least three more players will participate. Schaefer is to be one of the latter.

SEXTON'S ROOM is to be thoroughly renovated in time for the Fall and Winter business. New cloths for the tables, new balls, cues, etc., are among the good things promised, while the floor is to be covered entire with a new carpet. The work begins Aug. 20.

JAMES LYNCH, for the past fourteen years a resident of Baltimore, and for some time back superintendent of the Eutaw House billiard room, is at present disengaged, through the letting of the hotel to an outside party.

THOMAS NELMS, a brother of the late Edward Nelms of Philadelphia, died on Staten Island, July 24, aged fifty-two years. The deceased at one time kept a billiard room in Camden, N. J., and was once an employe of Chris. Bird in Philadelphia.

MAURICE DALY, accompanied by his family, is sojourning in the Adirondacks.

Saturday, Aug. 11, was the first day of the second Summer meeting, and, the weather being cloudy and cold, with showers, there was not a large attendance, while the track was good, and the results evenly divided between the favorites and others. The defeat of Badge for the United States Hotel Stakes was a great surprise, and would not have taken place had his rider attended to business. MONMOUTH PARK RACES.

An Outsider Wins the Junior Champion and Firenzi the Campion Stakes.

The attendance at the course of the Monmouth Park Association on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 7, was not so large as usual, while the weather was cloudy and the track somewhat heavy. The feature of the day was the victory of two horses belonging to S. W. Street of Brighton Beach, one of whom was a 30 to 1 chance and the betting against the other was 20 to 1. Little Minch had been brought down from Saratoga expressly to run for the Eatontown Stakes, and he realized the expectations of his owners. Street's Niagara, by Luke Blackburn, 4—105, Eilke first, in 1:42; Egmont, 5—122, G. "Champion Day" drew a great crowd to the course on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 11, and the majority of those who went there dropped the bulk of their money, only two favorites winning, while the principal event, the Junior Champion Stakes, fell to a horse against whom the odds were 8 to 1, notwithstanding that there was quite a strong tip on him and his owner backed him for considerable money. The weather was fine and the track in excellent condition. Result: Handicap sweepstakes for all ages, $25 each, $750 added, $150 to second, seven furlongs—W. B. RACEHORSES BURNED.—By an accident that occurred on the Erie Railway, west of Shohola, Pa., at 1.15 A. M. Aug. 13, thirteen of the thoroughbred racers and carriage horses that were being shipped to California by Mrs. Langtry and Fred Gebhard were either killed outright or caught in the ruins and burned to death. The running horses included Eole, Eolist, St. Saviour, Pauline and Palanca, all of whom have raced with more or less success on the American turf, while Eole also ran unsuccessfully in England in 1885. The horses, which were valued at $100,000, and had been shipped at the risk of the owners, were in charge of C. W. Aby of California, Mr. Gebhard's stud farm manager, and Matt D. Storms, the latter's horse Scandanavia being in the lot. Both the men were badly injured.

"NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL."

TARRANT'S EXTRACT OF CUBEBS AND COPAIBA

is an old, tried remedy, superior to any preparation hitherto invented, combining in a very highly concentrated form the medical properties of the Cubebs and Copaiba. Its neat, portable form, freedom from taste and speedy action (it frequently cures in three or four days and always in less time than any other preparation) make "Tarrant's Extract" the most desirable remedy ever manufactured. To prevent fraud see that each package had a red strip across the face of label, with the signature of TARRANT & Co., N. Y., upon it. Price, $1. Sold by all druggists.
